

Thrift is Not Avarice

"Save, young man, and become respectable and respected... It is the surest way."
—Ben. Franklin

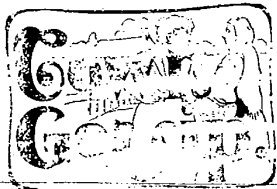

THRIFT is more than most people think it is. It is more than Prudence, which is merely good judgment in the practical affairs of life. It is more than economy which is the disposition to save. It is more than Frugality, which is prudence in the care of money earned. But THRIFT isn't grubbing, cheese-paring, saving every possible cent at the expense of self-respect, comfort and health. Economy means spending wisely and not unnecessarily; saving means keeping safely the margin over reasonable expenses. THRIFT is the accumulation of economy and saving until permanent and wise use can be made of the accumulation. THRIFT is the big thing in the life of the American people to-day. It is the necessary thing in your present and future. The wants to talk to you about this matter of THRIFT, to tell you of its provision for the care and safety of the accumulations of your thrift until the time of permanent investment comes for you.

"GINGLES JINGLES"

SELF-RELIANCE.
Just learn to rely on yourself as you go. The more you will do this, the stronger you grow. To lean upon others is mighty poor biz, and he who will try it is bound to get his. For when you lean heavy the props are released and then you are dumped on the skids that are greased, and straight to the down and out club you will slip, to mingle with hobos who'd not take the tip. Then stop the descent, for it leads to the pen, where many have lauded who might have been men, had they but learned on themselves to rely, and not been such dubs but gone in for a try. So do your own digging and draw your own plans, make use of your head and work hard with your hands, and don't be a trailer but get in the lead. The men that make good are the men that we need. Do something worth while and depend on yourself. Get into the game and come down off the shelf. There's work to be done, so get busy at once. Forget all your troubles and don't be a dunce. Come out in the open; look upward and climb, you all have a chance and all you have the time. Rely on yourself and have faith, and don't shirk. The medals are only for those who win't shirk will work.
