VALESKA SURATT IN "THE IMMIGRANT"
 By Marion Fairfax, at the Auditorium, Saturday Evening

Valeska Suratt appears in the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company production, "The Immigrant," in which she will make her debut as a star on the Paramount Program.

Few American actresses are so well known as Miss Suratt. For her first Lasky Production she has been provided with a role that is something entirely different from the kind of part with which Miss Suratt in the past has been identified.

Miss Suratt appears in "The Immigrant" as a young peasant woman from a foreign land, who comes to America and fights and wins her way into success. Considerable of the story happens on the trans-continental liner aboard which Masha (Miss Suratt) and her country-men and country-women are seen as steerage passengers. There is a detailed narrative of the trials and tribulations of the newly arrived foreigner and the hardships which she undergoes and the simple happiness she obtains from the association with her own alien people.

Marion Fairfax, who wrote "The Immigrant," has developed a strong, virile drama, full of sympathetic appeal.

Among those who appear in support of Miss Suratt are Thomas Meighan, Theodore Roberts, Hal Clements, Ernest Joy, Bob Fleming, Jane Wolff and Mrs. Lewis McCord.
