

Thorns Every Rose

"This old world we live in is mighty hard to live in. We get a thorn with every rose, but ain't the roses sweet?"

Not a rose without a thorn, not an accomplishment without effort, not a success without sacrifice. That is the philosophy Stanton sings and it is set to the music of human experience. You are pretty certain to prick both your fingers and your pride in gathering the roses of success, but 'ain't the roses sweet? The dollars are the roses of toil of purpose and effort, and their perfume is the satisfaction in having met an obligation; the obligation of making provision for the "rainy day," for age and dependents. We want to repeat with emphasis that the wants to Get Acquainted with men and women who are scratching their fingers on the thorns gathering the roses of provision. We want to tell them of the provision we have made for the safety of the roses, how to graft, prune and transplant into larger growth!

Why not come in and talk this matter over with us? Why not use the experience of expert horticulturist in the garden of finance?

—Sorry, but we just had to do it. For the past few months Andover people, especially the business men, have been passing through a siege of solicitations from pretty-faced sixteen-year old damsels from adjoining towns, asking for votes so they could get scholarships in this school or that college, and for many and various other charities, all worthy, without doubt. We have been an especially shining mark for these pretty Misses, but we give it out herewith double-loaded that we are through. "Charity" begins at home and we have all we can possibly do to keep our own sweet Andover girls happy, without extending the philanthropy to adjoining villages.

FILLMORE HAD BAD FIRE

On Tuesday Night Flames Swept Big Section on North Side of Main Street.

Fillmore, Sept. 8.—Fire which swept the north side of Main street Tuesday night destroyed a total of fifteen buildings, six of them on Main street, the other stables and similar buildings in the rear. The fire started about 1 o'clock in a sort of storage room under Webb's meat market, in what manner is not known. It raged for several hours, but was finally brought under control by the combined efforts of Fillmore and Hume fire departments. Practically nothing worth while was gotten out of the buildings except the goods from the millinery store of Maud Farnsworth. The following buildings were destroyed.

Railroad hotel of Mrs. Lane, occupied by D. E. Quant.

Buildings adjoining owned by Fred Purdy and occupied by Messrs. Pritchard.

The next was the building in which the fire started, owned by Mary Crawford and occupied in addition to the meat market, by Frank Sprague.

McMurty's hotel and restaurant.

L. D. Wilday's hardware store. Kinney, building-Miss Catherine Kinney, the owner, occupied the second floor and Farnsworth millinery store the first floor.

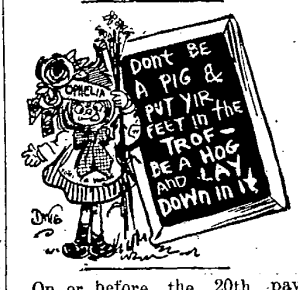

The buildings on the South side of Main street caught fire several times, but were extinguished. The fronts were badly scorched and all the glass in the fronts was broken.

The loss is about $30,000.

WALKING MACHINE

The editor of the household department in the Erie Railroad Magazine, discussing letters from correspondents, says: "My custom is not to play any records at all when I have company unless requested, and then not more than three unless urged. Lots of people while visiting or calling expect to spend their time in conversation. Nearly everyone has a machine nowadays and can have all the music wanted at home. My advice is to be careful not to bore your company with this or any other kind of music or entertainment. Give them what they want. That is true politeness."

"A dog in the house is all right under certain conditions; but the natural place is out of doors, unless he is small and of a certain 'house-broke' breed. Some small New York apartments have mastiffs and Newfoundlands in them, although there is hardly room for the occupants to turn around. This is neither healthful nor comfortable for man or beast. But as my husband once said as he observed a man put sugar in his oyster stew, 'there is no accounting for tastes.'"
