

Man Who Wins

The man who wins is the average man. He is built on any particular plan. He does not beat with any particular luck. He is steady and earnest and full of pluck.—Barrett.

Isn't this an inspiring thought? The men who win are the "average" men, like you and I, and the men we rub elbows with in the shop, the store, the factory and on the farm! "Just average" men! Men with a mission and a purpose! The "mission" to make for themselves an honorable place in the world in which they live; the "purpose" to fulfill the obligation of life. Is there any obligation greater than that of making "provision" for age and dependents? To provide for the "rainy days" and to grasp opportunities. Did you ever sit down with a quiet hour of introspection and ask yourself if you are making an honest effort to safeguard the future that is as certain as tomorrow? Ever think how trifling are the pleasures of the hour compared with the real pleasure and satisfaction in the sacrifices and self denial of making "provision" for "obligations"? Ever realize what a credit account in some strong bank like the means to you in this development? Frankly, we want to get acquainted with the man who saves his money against the day of need and opportunity. It is our business and our pleasure to help him with our advice and our faculty for serving him.

AUTO TOUR ROUTE NO. 3.

The members of the Democrat Auto Tour, Route No. 3, were in Andover Thursday morning. They started from Rochester, Oct. 9th and will end at Buffalo Nov. 4th. In the party were Hon. Irving Washington, of New York City, speaker on national issues, and Hon. A. B. Johnson, of New York City, speaker on state issues. They will visit Monroe, Livingston, Allegany, Cattaraugus, Chautauque, Erie, Niagara, Orleans, Genesee and Wyoming Counties during their tour. They expressed themselves as highly pleased with the progress of the campaign so far and said they found wholesome sentiment for the national and state tickets among the former Progressives and also among the Republicans, who will vote for Mr. Wilson, in every town and city visited by them up to date.

SMOKELESS POWDER.

Cordite is Made of Two High Explosives Kneaded Into Paste. Cordite is the outcome of the strange paradox that if you mix together two powerful explosives the result is a smokeless, slow burning powder. Nitroglycerin and gun cotton mixed together with a little petroleum jelly make cordite.

It is curious to see the two deadly explosives being kneaded together into a paste by women with the same unconcern as dough is kneaded for bread. Indeed, machines similar to those used in bakeries take up the work and knead the buff colored cordite paste for seven hours. Then it is forced through molds and issues in long cords—hence the name cordite—the thickness of which is varied according to the weapon in which it is to be used.

For big guns cordite is half an inch thick and cut into lengths of thirty-seven inches. Rather more than a thousand of these cordite sticks packed in two bundles make up the cartridge for a twelve inch gun.

For the rifle cordite is pressed into a very thin string, like the finest macaroni, and sixty of these strands one inch and a half long make the neat little bundle which lies inside the cartridge case.

For some European armies cordite is made in flat thin strips like whalebone.

Kept away from fire, cordite can be handled with impunity.—London Chronicle.

Thrashing Machines. The flail is the most ancient instrument for thrashing grain, although it is possible that the tramping of the straw under the feet of horses, oxen and men is a close second. The Romans used a machine called the "tribulum," a sledge loaded with stones or iron and drawn over the grain sheaves by horses or oxen. The first machine attempted in modern times for the work of thrashing was invented by one Michael Mengies of Edinburgh about 1732. Some thirty years later Andrew Meikle built a similar machine. It was not until the latter half of the nineteenth century, however, that the thrashing machine reached anything like its present perfection.

Union Suit the Whole Family in MUNSING WEAR and You'll All be Comfortable This Winter.

MANY folks seem to have the idea that Munsingwear is high priced.

The fine quality and careful workmanship in Munsingwear undoubtedly gives that impression.

When they find out the price of the particular Munsingwear style and fabric that they like best they are usually surprised—and delighted.

They are delighted again when they put on their Munsingwear—it fits so perfectly, feels so comfortable.

Again they are surprised when the Munsingwear comes back from the wash—as perfect-fitting as ever.

The climax to their Munsingwear experience comes when they discover how long it wears.

For any man, woman or child—tall, thin, short or stout—there's a perfect-fitting Munsingwear garment in any style, fabric or weight desired.

These Munsingwear features explain why there are now 10,000,000 Munsingwear garments sold annually.
