172 YEARS AGO TODAY

Molly Pitcher, the Heroine of the Battle of Monmouth, was born.

When her husband was shot down by the Red Coats, this brave woman at once took his place at the side of the cannon and continued firing at the enemy. There are many kinds of bravery in this world and any woman of the present day can display this virtue, one way being by cconamically managing her household and laying aside each week a certain amount to add to the general banking fund. In this manner she will safeguard the future.

This bank offers every courtesy to women patrons.
