

MARINES VS. VOTES

Some months ago mail robberies came thick and fast. Bandits were making many rich hauls. The public was becoming demoralized.

Then the government put the United States Marines to guarding the registered mails. Instead of getting money the bandits got bullets in their carcasses. Some said "good morning" to the devil.

The Marines had no future votes to consider, hence they shot, and shot straight, and mail robberies ceased.

All of the rest of the banditry that is disgracing this country should be handled and checked as effectively if officials would consider only the conscientious discharge of their duty and get away from the prevailing custom of pandering to the votes of the criminal element.

Eyeglasses are popular when they improve the looks.

It is fortunate we do not all think alike. There would be no occasion for roasting the editor.

Some people think evil, but haven't the courage to carry it out.

Some people do a lot of talking about hell before they get there.

A good cook invariably commands high wages, if she isn't married.

The fellow who goes thru life in a hurry is the first to slow up at the other end.

The optimist never worries over a busted bubble. He blows another while he waits.

Of course, it may have no connection with the reds of Russia, but many American farmers are changing the color of their barns.

The man who advertises his honesty may deceive himself, but never those who know him.

Law and order can not expect to accomplish anything by sleeping while criminality works.

Speak well of your neighbor. If he hears of it he may speak less disparagingly of you.

Some women believe in charity beginning at home. They lift it while the old man sleeps.

Why should a young man hesitate and stammer when he pops the question? The delay is often exasperating to the lady in the case.
