MAN OF FAITH AND LEARNING

Origin Considered One of the Greatest of the Early Church Fathers — Upheld Christian Faith.

Origin, surnamed Adamantius, who lived from 185 to 254 A. D., is considered by some authorities as the greatest of the early church fathers. Alexandria, in Egypt, the great seat of learning of the time, is thought to have been his birthplace. He was a teacher and deep student of philosophy and of the Scriptures, and he became a great defender of the Christian faith. His literary productions were numerous and several have come down to the modern world, among them being a treatise on theology, a few sermons or discourses of that nature, parts of commentaries on the Gospels of St. Matthew and St. John and St. Paul's Epistle to the Romans. His greatest work is his defense of Christianity against the attacks in the writings of Celsus, an Epicurean philosopher of the second century. Celsus' work is not extant, but the character of it is made clear in Origin's refutation, which contains many quotations, and Origin's line of argument indicates clearly the line of attack followed by Celsus. The attacks upon Christianity by many critics are simply repetitions of Celsus' objections, which Origin answered about seventeen hundred years ago.

Business methods are invariably slow in the Near East, according to Miss Grace Willis who has returned recently from a period of service with the Y. W. C. A. in Constantinople, Stamboul and Beirut. ## Sturdy, Good Looking, But Light

Everyone concedes the distinctive beauty of the Jordan car.

Thousands of owners know the charm of its fascinating personality — its gratifying comfort — and the satisfaction of its enduring quality.

Those who associate true economy with an expression of good taste, are gratified by the feeling of sturdy strength not usually the accompaniment of light weight.

The Jordan easily finds its place at the curb and moves nimbly through the crowded traffic. But it is not alone a boulevard car. Owners in the less travelled areas regard it as a faithful, reliable companion on the roughest highways.

The Jordan hugs the road, moving constantly forward — never swaying sideways.

There is a thrill in the new exclusive Jordan motor, a sense of satisfaction in the knowledge that point for point it excels.

Quiet and perfectly balanced, as a good motor car should be, the Jordan is taking the place of more expensive cars of the old fashioned, heavy type.

And it is attracting to the enviable group of Jordan owners many who once thought it beyond their means.

Tea Room and Soda Fountain

OUR NEWEST DEPARTMENT

For years we have had the idea of a high-class tea room and soda fountain in connection with our store. For it has been the experience of the most successful and most progressive stores in America, that folks appreciate good things to eat and the refreshments that may be had at a high-class soda fountain while on a shopping tour. So when we had the opportunity to buy the Smith Tea Room right next door to us, we acted promptly and immediately cut an archway that would connect the tea room with our store.

GOOD THINGS TO EAT

After a complete refurnishing and remodeling that has transformed the place into a room of beauty, we have opened the new Tea Room and offer our guests a cuisine par excellence. Men and women who have occasion to lunch downtown will find this not only an attractive place to eat, but dishes and service of a high quality. As an afternoon or evening rendezvous, where one may meet friends and enjoy a light lunch, a delicious confection, or an after theater dinner—we believe The Babcock Tea Room will prove immensely popular.

MISS MARGARET CHARLES HOSTESS

The many who personally know Miss Charles, under whose direction our new department will be operated, will be eager to test this new eating place. Others, knowing that quality has always been the Babcock slogan, will come expecting THE BEST.

THE NEW SODA FOUNTAIN

Having rebuilt and re-equipped the soda fountain and having provided the very best of ingredients—assurance is given that everything served here will be SUPERIOR.
