There will be a large and exceptionally fine peach crop this season, states Leo M. Allen manager of the Niagara county farm bureau, "and the whole story of the price of peaches," adds Mr. Allen, "is contained in the story of the railroad situation." Any attempt to state the price of peaches would of course be only a guess, and as near as Mr. Allen dares estimate is 75 cents per "state" basket, which holds one-third of a bushel. It is expected that peaches will be shipped at approximately $1.25-$1.50 a bushel basket.

Western New York's meat supply is assured even if there is a general strike of railroad workers. Plans made by the East Buffalo Live Stock association assure delivery of meat to all points which obtain their supply from Buffalo. It was said there, if there should be a tieup of train movement of livestock and meat will be begun immediately by motor truck. This service will extend to points within a radius of 200 miles. Such service was carried on which the tramen struck during the war period. At that time stock was brought to Buffalo by truck from points as far distant as Elmira. Meat was delivered to points equally distant.

SIGN-BOARDS ON THE UP-ROAD

Hamilton B. Williams

When Jesus honored His friends by calling them world-light, He meant a spiritual eminence. Light has no substitute. A man, or organization may call themselves Christians. But only illumination determines relation to the ideals of Jesus. A man calling himself Christian must be a fellow-man, a neighborly man, a man of the open door. So with an organization. The proof of fellowship with Jesus is fellowship with the objects of the artistry of God.

Jesus is God's tall mountaineer, who beholds the world as one struggling family. The children know God to be unconquerable, but know, also, that man must go thru vast disciplines. Only the child-mind is fearful and pessimistic. Full-grown men and women are not afraid. No panic.

The question is, my comrades of the lifting roads, Shall we affirm the findings of our utmost dreams? We need not consider whether God is being. He must be the Substance of the Dream; or would be A-quest of the Ultimate . . . in either case, we should find His patterns of guiding. Nay, 'tis like He should find us first, lend a hand or cheer us in. Our struggles . . . Shall we dare the adventure of Life? If it lead us into the dark, we shall at least, have dared. 'Tis dark enough in the earth. If we come upon Wrath, We are a better God. If we chance upon snug Little heaven and little folk preening themselves, Our quest has been profitable, seeing we might Have stopped there and have been content to be clan-folk.

The Dream shows lifting trails and open fields and Life Unfolding ampler as the God in us grows up.

Many a fellow prides himself on the things he does in his imagination.

Only a small per centage of us receive our just deserts in this world. There are not enough jails.

Some people are never satisfied unless they are advertising the good qualities they don't possess.

There is no dearth of money in this country. The only scarcity is in the number of people who possess it.

When we hear a fellow orating on the glories of his past we wonder why in heck he is so silent about his present.

Congress has spent more energy and ingenuity in dodging the bonus than the whole American Army did in earning it.
