Greatest Democratic Victory New York State Ever Had—Whole State Ticket Elected—Copeland Elected U. S. Senator

Former Governor Alfred E. Smith, rolling up the greatest plurality New York city has ever given any candidate in any election was swept back into the gubernatorial chair from which he had been ejected in 1920 by Gov. Nathan L. Miller.

Republicans not only admit the defeat of Mr. Miller, but concede that William M. Calder had lost his seat in the senate to Royal S. Copeland, health commissioner of New York city.

Democrats Claim Congress Gains

With the success of their ticket leaders, Democrats were claiming gains in congress and the legislature, but the Republicans maintained stoutly that their majorities in the senate and assembly had been little diminished.

A Democratic victory in New York city, a Democratic citadel, had been expected, but the total was a surprise. The vote with 67 districts out, was: Smith, 737,316; Miller, 268,553.

Two years ago, Smith captured 709,694 votes in New York city and Miller 389,729, giving Smith a plurality of nearly 320,000.

Surprising as were the Democratic gains upstate for Smith, the showing made by Dr. Copeland was even more surprising to political observers.

Late returns for congress and the legislature are still trailing in. They show that there had been seven upsets with Democrats ousting six Republicans and one Socialist in the house. There are 43 members in the New York delegation and the last returns show that 11 Republicans and 13 Democrats had been declared elected.

There also were upsets in the legislature, several Democrats pulling chairs from under Republicans.

To the senate 25 Republicans and 23 Democrats had been elected; to the assembly 69 Republicans and 39 Democrats.

Whole Democratic Ticket Wins

George K. Morris, chairman of the Republican state committee, was a little longer in admitting a Democratic victory. When he did so, however, he admitted that other Republicans on the state ticket, including Senator Calder, had been vanquished by Royal S. Copeland, health commissioner of New York city.

Early returns indicated an impressive victory for Mr. Smith and New York newspapers were quick to announce his victory, coming out with extras after the counting had been in progress less than an hour.

SMITH GIVEN OVATION

Crowds in New York City Congratulate Next Governor on Victory

Ex-Governor Smith divided his time between Tammany Hall and his headquarters in receiving the returns in New York city.

When Mr. Smith returned to the Biltmore hotel a crowd of several hundred men, women and children surrounded him and the police were finally called to make room for him to proceed to his headquarters. There he was surrounded by another crowd of cheering admirers.

Mounting a chair the ex-governor said:

"While we are celebrating and feel happy over the result, I am not unmindful of the great responsibilities that go with the office. I have received such an overwhelming vote of confidence that it cannot be ignored."

"I promise you that I will do my part right up to the handle—100 per cent—so that nobody will have any cause to regret giving three cheers for me."

Mrs. Smith, quite overcome by the ovation, was presented a huge bouquet of roses.

Thanks Miller for Congratulations

The governor-elect, when he received Gov. Miller's telegram, dictated the following reply:

"Dear Governor: "Accept my sincere thanks for your kind telegram of congratulation."

The Democrats made a gain in the assembly from the Fourth district in Westchester when G. T. Holden of Yorkers defeated R. B. Libermore of Yorkers.

Miller Congratulates Smith

Gov. Miller, receiving the returns in the executive chambers of the Capitol at Albany, congratulated Mr. Smith's election and sent a telegram of congratulation to his opponent. "Having tried both brands of government," said Mr. Miller in his telegram, "the people have decisively chosen yours. I cheerfully accept the result and heartily congratulate you on your victory."

In a statement to the press Gov. Miller said:

"For nearly two years I have given the best that was in me to improve the public service. The people have spoken and all good citizens will accept the result and willingly support the incoming administration. I shall return to private life on Jan. 1 with no regrets."

Smith Carries Syracuse

George R. Lunn, Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, and Dr. Copeland, candidate for United States senator, each ran on practically even terms with Alfred E. Smith in the city of Syracuse.

Complete figures show Smith carried the city by 6,704; Lunn had 6,304 lead over Donovan and Copeland had 6,978 over Calder.

Buffalo Gets Daylight Saving

The voters of Buffalo Tuesday approved daylight saving turned down the proposal to give the board of education financial powers independent of the city council and induced legislation permitting the city to own and operate bus lines.

Miller Wins John D.'s District

John D. Rockefeller's district in the town of Mt. Pleasant was the only one that was carried by Gov. Miller in Tuesday's election. The governor got a majority of two in that district.

Poughkeepsie for Smith

Poughkeepsie city complete gives Miller 3,689 and Smith 4,396.

Poughkeepsie city complete for senator gives Calder 3,345, Copeland 3,904.

Smith Carries Miller's Home Town

Alfred E. Smith carried Syracuse, home city of Nathan L. Miller, by 8,704 votes. Two years ago Miller carried the city by 10,061.

Smith Carries Ogdensburg

Smith carried Ogdensburg by 300. Miller carried St. Lawrence county 9,000. Calder carried St. Lawrence county by 10,000.

Democrats Carry Utica

Smith and Copeland carried the city of Utica 54 out of 56 districts giving Miller 8,442, Smith 13,478; Calder 10, 112, Copeland 11,043.

Smith Wins in Auburn

City of Auburn complete gives Miller 4,018, Smith, 5,892. In 1920 the vote stood: Miller 5,374, Smith 4,690.

Smith Sweeps Albany

Complete figures for the city of Albany give Miller 19,934—Smith, 31,678.

Oswego Goes for Smith

Complete returns for Oswego city for governor give Smith 6,248 and Miller 2,990.

Smith Wins in Glens Falls

Ex-Governor Smith carried Glens Falls by 957.

Rochester Goes to Smith

The city of Rochester gives Smith 40,133, Miller 34,938.

W. F. M. S.

The W. F. M. S. of the M. E. Church will meet with Mrs. Elmer Bixby, Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 15th. All are urged to be present.

Swept by a Democratic and Progressive landslide, Republican strongholds throughout the country suffered the defeat of some of their most notable and conspicuous leaders in Tuesday's election.

Henry Cabot Lodge, veteran Massachusetts senator and Republican leader in the senate, appears to have gone down to defeat under the terrific onslaught of Democratic votes.

Although Lodge claims his election by 15,000 the steady gains made by Col. W. A. Gaston, his Democratic opponent, seemed likely to destroy hope of Lodge's election.

Gaston carried Boston by two to one over Lodge and his vote in the state, while not in the same proportion, was sufficient to give him the lead and to enable him to maintain it as the count progressed.

Late returns from 732 districts of New Jersey out of the 2,464 gave Edwards 109,654 and Frelinghuysen 89,608 for United States senator and Silzer 103,568 and Runyon 93,480 for governor.

Defeat of Senator Hitchcock, Dem., of Nebraska, who led the fight for adoption of the League of Nations, also was conceded.

Senator James A. Reed has won a smashing victory in Missouri.

DEMOCRATS GAIN IN HOUSE

Political Complexion of Next Congress in Doubt on Early Returns

Congressional returns at present are complete from only seven states. The election of 119 Democratic representatives and 67 Republicans out of the total of 436 had been reported, but those figures were in no wise indicative of the political complexion of the next congress, as large blocks of districts with heavy Republican delegations in some and heavy Democratic delegations in others still were to be heard from.

Speaker Gillette (Rep.) was re-elected from the Second Massachusetts district for his 16th term, making him the patriarch of the new house of representatives.

Three chairmen of the important committees of the house of representatives were returned in the re-election of Representatives Butler and McFadden of Pennsylvania and Dempsey of New York. They are chairmen of the naval, banking and rivers and harbors committees respectively.

In New York city the Republicans by the early returns lost two seats in the house of representatives. In the 23rd district, Frank Oliver (Dem.) defeated Representative Rosedale (Rep.), and in the 33rd district Meyer Jacobstein (Dem.) defeated Representative Jerson (Rep.).

In the 12th district Samuel Dickstein (Dem.) defeated Meyer London the only Socialist member of the house, who had a nomination also on the Farmer-Labor ticket.

Robert L. Bacon, son of the late Robert Bacon, former ambassador to France, won one of the most spirited congressional elections in the state when he defeated S. A. W. Bazzani, in the 1st district.

Wets Ahead in Ohio

A. V. Donahay, Democratic candidate for governor, took the lead on the basis of 802 of the state's 6,000 precincts reported so far. The vote at that time was Thompson (Rep.) 73,360; Donahay (Dem.) 73,886. In 583 precincts Fees (Rep.) for senator, had a total of 43,706; Pomerene, 42,143.

In 484 precincts the amendment providing for beer of pre-war strength received 36,566, while 31,914 voted against the proposal.

Miss Robertson Facing Defeat

Miss Alice Robertson, Republican, the only woman in congress, ran badly behind in the early returns from the Second Oklahoma district. With 47 precincts out of 266 heard from W. W. Hastings, Democrat, whom Miss Robertson defeated in 1920 had 5,188 votes and Miss Robertson's total was only 2,565.

Georgia Overwhelmingly Democratic

The Democratic state ticket, headed by Clifford M. Walker for governor, carried Georgia by the usual overwhelming Democratic majority. A tight vote was cast owing to rainy weather.

Gerry (Dem.) Wins in Rhode Island

With a lead of 4,544 in 105 districts out of 194, Senator Gerry of Rhode Island is deemed practically a winner over R. L. Beckman (Rep.), as the remaining districts are for the most part Democratic strongholds.

Ninety Days With a Passport

Descriptive Writers of Central New York Reporting Trip Through Europe for The News.

By M. A. and T. H. CHAPPEL

Gelderland—near the German Frontier. Western Holland.

After our strenuous sight-seeing and traveling in France, Italy, Switzerland and Germany, we looked to Holland as a resting-place. There was no immediate change of scenery after crossing the border from Germany into Holland. The so-called Dutch windmills which we had seen in eastern as well as western Germany continued to be seen, the purple fields of heather continued as before. At the first station (Weimegen) where we had to change cars, we noticed a difference not only in the station signs, but in the white-frosted porters ready to take our baggage. Our passports and baggage were examined, we checked the latter—or rather left it without any check whatever in the care of Porter No. 3—and went uptown to change our money. A Dutch lady and gentleman whose compartment we had shared in the train, very kindly showed us the town and gave us necessary information. We appreciated this very much, especially since we had been unable to procure a Baedeker on Holland—a guide-book written in any language but Dutch.

The chief Dutch piece of money in the gulden. It's value is about 40 cents in our money. A two and one-half gulden silver piece, the size of our dollar, has also the value of our dollar. The hundred parts of the gulden are called cents, and when one has silver pieces marked 25 and 10 cents, one is liable to think of them in their American value.

Our first impression of a Dutch city was most favorable. Beautiful green parkways with blooming geraniums, dahlias, roses, oleanders, heliotropes and many other flowers, were in the center of the main thoroughfares. The houses were built in a style more like our own than any we had seen in Europe. Every yard was full of lovely flowers. We were told that apartment houses are not in popular favor in Holland. We did not see people with wooden shoes until our second day in Holland.

Our first real knowledge that we were in another country came when we had to pay for our meal at the hotel. We had to pay almost ten times as much as in Germany; but how good that glass of milk tasted after weeks without milk! We were happy at the prospect of having an abundance of cheese, milk and butter to eat.

After two hours in Neimegen and 40 minutes more on the railroad, we came to Arnhem. This city in Gelderland is not visited by foreigners like Amsterdam and The Hague, but tourists miss much by not going there. The chief clerk at the hotel gladly outlined some "excursions" for us, hoping thus to keep us from going on immediately to Amsterdam, as most other tourists have done.

We took the first of these excursions on the Queen's birthday, the 31st of August. Early in the morning we heard a band playing, and soon children's voices were heard singing patriotic songs. Next we saw scores of children marching thru the streets, carrying huge wreaths of flowers, and wearing yellow streamers (yellow is the Queen's color). Little girls were bedecked with bright yellow sashes and yellow hair-ribbons. Crowds filled the streets, and before noon we were glad to take the train for a half-hour's ride to the summer village of Ellecom. The slow-moving accommodation train gave us an opportunity to see the beautiful large country estates, and nearer to us still the neat little homes of the common people. Most of these last are set in vegetable gardens hemmed in with bright flowers. Practically all of these houses are of red brick, and the windows have wooden blinds; some are black and white, some red and green, some orange and green, and the combination proved to be in harmony thruout.

At Ellecom we got off at a tiny station and immediately entered an open grass plot alongside of the railroad. A band was playing lively airs and the spryest among those assembled—some of them in the prime of life—formed in parallel lines of seven or eight persons and skipped around the bandstand. There was a refreshment stand where some beer was being drunk, but it must be said here that men and women in restaurants in Holland order milk, tea and chocolate quite as much as beer. In this park place there was a shooting-gallery, a stand for selling fruit and another for cigars. On the side of the road, under a beautiful canopy of trees, sports were being carried on. Boys and girls, on bicycles, with an iron rod in one hand, rode by and tried to put their rod thru a suspended ring. The girls seemed more successful than the boys.

THE TRAVELING LITTLE THEATRE

First Number on Odd Fellows Entertainment Course Will be Nov. 20th. Alone Worth Price of Course.

There is no movement in the country to-day of greater importance to the morale of the people, of greater benefit to the country at large than the Little Theatre Movement—or as it is often called—The Drama League.

In most of the larger cities those people believing the true-art of the theatre to be the producing of plays of merit, plays of great authors, clean, wholesome, instructive, as well as entertaining plays, have organized for that specific purpose—an advancing the art of the drama. It is not a "Show" producing organization.

The attraction appearing at the Auditorium, Monday evening, Nov. 20th is organized for that specific purpose and, known as The Little Theatre Party, is presenting the play of three acts, "The Gypsy Trail." The company is carrying a complete production, special attention being paid to the staging and the color schemes of draperies, making as artistic a performance as possible. The drama League has turned out artists of merit, whose love of the drama has led them to organize themselves into The Little Theatre Party and spread to all the work of that great organization.

The play "The Gypsy Trail" is especially suited to this work and had a successful run, in New York, played by such well-known actors as Roland Young, Ernest Glendinning and Phoebe Foster. It is not a Gypsy play, but portrays the Gypsy spirit of romance in human nature, and the desire to leave this monotonous life for the realms of fancy and romance.

It is a play that older people love, in which the younger generation can easily picture themselves; and about which the children dream; and one which all will thoroughly enjoy. You will come away with something to think about long after The Little Theatre Party has moved on.

Keep the date open, November 20th.

SURPRISE VISIT

Forty friends including the members of her bible school class and others from the S. D. Baptist church society gave Mrs. Addie Coleman a surprise visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Harvey Backus, Sunday evening.

A fine supper was served and a short program of readings and music enjoyed. The evening was thoroughly enjoyed, and the party a complete surprise to Mrs. Coleman.
