Of Interest to Farmers

WORKS AS FARM HAND TO LEARN OF STOCK

Rich Son of Brazilian Rancher Comes 20,000 Miles to Study Methods of Raising and Breeding.

(Special to The News by Robert Fuller.)

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 9.—Suppose your father owned a 14,000 acre ranch in Brazil, on which he raised cattle. Would you travel 20,000 miles to a country whose people and language you did not know, and work there as an ordinary "hand" on a farm—in order to learn how to breed and raise purebred live stock?

That is what a twenty-six-year-old Brazilian is doing. His name is Julio Paix Cortes; and he came all the way from Bago, Rio Grand de Sul, Brazil, in order to learn how cattle are handled by the leading breeders of the United States.

The young Brazilian gets up every morning at 5, helps feed at Cedar Croft Farm, near Kansas City; and then, after breakfast, puts in a strenuous day. At night he records his observations in his ever-ready notebook.

Pretty ambitious, don't you think, for a rich young man who owns 1,400 acres of Brazilian ranch land in his own right—and whose father has ten times as much more?

Yet young Paix Cortes enjoys it, because he is learning new things every day. His practical experience at Cedar Croft Farm is the climax of several months' training in this country, during which he attended the animal-husbandry classes at the University of Illinois and Iowa State Agricultural College.

"I came to the United States to learn the best strains of Herefords here," he says. "Brazil already has thousands of Hereford cattle, brought in principally from England and Uruguay. In the future, we think Brazilian ranchers will come to the United States almost exclusively for Herefords."

"I wanted to acquire knowledge of your methods and cattle. That it was very difficult for me before I learned your language, I think the effort is very much worth while; and I wish every Brazilian farmer could send his sons to study at the splendid agricultural colleges and wonderful farms of this country."

Why Harp on the Price?

At times we have been criticized on harping on the price. Our answer always is this: "Nothing should be of greater interest to the buyer than to get our Better Shoes for Less Money," sounds good.

PUTTING THE FARM ON BUSINESS BASIS

Properly Prepared Inventory and Statement Called Big Help in Giving Farmer Credit Right. — Ly His

The first step to take in putting a farm on a good business basis is to take an annual inventory and from this to make out a credit statement of the banker, according to the State College of Agriculture at Cornell. The farm inventory, it says, is the simplest financial record a farmer can keep. It tells him how much he is worth above his debts, and a comparison of two successive annual inventories will indicate whether one has got ahead or has run behind for the year, and how much. All this can be learned by the use of less than a half day's labor once a year.

The man who is borrowing money should make out credit statement for the bank at least once a year. The banker is entitled to the information which a credit statement will give him. The farmer is entitled to the additional credit which such a statement will usually obtain for him.

How to Save Money

Any man who is buying feed, fertilizer, or other supplies on credit, can generally save money by borrowing money from a bank and saving the discounts that are usually given for cash.

The best credit statement for a farmer is a copy of his summarized inventory with some additional information, such as the amount of insurance carried and similar facts.

The State College of Agriculture at Ithaca has just published a bulletin entitled "How to Take a Farm Inventory and Make a Credit Statement." This not only contains full directions for taking an inventory, but also space for recording two inventories. This bulletin, which also contains duplicate copies of a credit statement for farms, can be had by any one who sends a postcard request to the college at Ithaca for publication.

WORLD WIDE GUILD

The Allegany County World Wide Guild banquet was held this year at Friendship, Nov. 3, 1922. There are seven chapters in the county, namely Rushford, Angelica, Richburg, Friendship, Belmont, Wellsville, and Andover. Richburg was the only Guild that did not have representatives there. Fourteen attended from Andover.

As each girl registered a white star with her name and place of residence was pinned on her. The banquet was then ready and the speakers and mothers of the different Guilds were seated at one table and Guild girls at other tables. The room was very prettily decorated with the Guild colors, blue and white. There also being one large white chrysanthemum in the center of each table.

While the banquet was being served many songs and yells were given and each one enjoyed. After serving was over the Toast Mistress then took charge. The program was as follows:

Toast Mistress Friendship First Toast "The Potato Race" Miss Laura Russell Friendship Second Toast "The Peanut Race" Miss Gladys Taylor Rushford Third Toast "Three Legged Race" Mrs. Russell Rook Angelica Fourth Toast "The Victor's Crown of Gold" Miss Margaret Haynes Belmont Foster and Rev. Lowrey of Friendship.

W. W. G. Song "Follow the Glean" Friendship Guild.

Song by one other Friendship girl. We then adjourned to another room and Miss Jordan of Friendship, told us about the W. W. G. Summer House Party held at Keuka College, which she attended.

The 1922 Vice President then conducted a business meeting and also Messages also given by Mrs. Charles gave the Guilds an invitation to attend the Banquet at Wellsville in 1923. The following officers were elected. President: Mrs. Howe, Wellsville.

Vice President: Miss Margaret Haynes, Belmont. Secretary: Miss Gladys Taylor, Rushford. Treasurer: Miss Inez Youmans, Andover. The World Wide Guild is worth While Girls giving of our best to the Master.

ATLAS PORTLAND CEMENT

PORTLAND cement requires expensive manufacturing machinery, delicate and accurate analysis, proportioning and supervision—it is probably the most costly of all building materials to manufacture. In use on the job it is one of the most economical.

To the building world, it is what sugar is to the grocer—a small profit item that must depend on volume for any profit at all. Your building material dealer is actually doing your community a favor when he stocks cement—it is an essential, and as such he carries it.

But because it is an essential you can enable him to continue to stock it. There are a dozen small jobs, and perhaps some big ones, where you can most economically and profitably use concrete right now. You'll be surprised how cheaply it can be used.
