CONCERNING SALLIE

Sallie is a modern, pretty young creature, with all the emotions and desires you yourself had when you were at that glorious age that lies somewhere between sixteen and twenty-five. Sallie is everywhere. The eyes of the world are upon the ultimate outcome of her moral code. Is she going to weaken her creed of right-and-wrong and stretch her philosophy to that of the girls who have a "good" time?

Tour little girl is just where Sallie is. She must decide for herself. They are all Salities at heart. Salitie's experience, put down truthfully from the pages of her life, may help your Sallies. Each chapter is complete in itself. Read it this week. You will enjoy it.—Editor.

Sallie's Reputation at Stake

I was panicky. I knew that the "memento" Ted was about to pull from his pocket was the remainder of my little black and white checked bathing suit. They would all recognize it. What would they think? The silence was apphiling.

I looked up at Curtiss Wright in desperation. In the meantime Ted was dragging the bit of silk from his pocket. My eyes must have sent an S. O. S. to Curtiss, for in a moment he edged his way through the crowd and had Ted by the shoulder. To the onlookers it was all done in a friendly manner, but I noticed that he had pinned his right arm to his side so that it was impossible to display the thing his hand was holding. "Wassa matter, Mr. Achi ec', wanna protect our little girl friend was about to call my name."

He was about to call my name.

"Wassa matter, Mr. Achi ec, wanna protect our little girl friend —"

He was about to call my name when my rescuer cuddenly shoved him, still apparently in a friendly scuffle, out thru one of the long casement windows.

The crowd stood sullenly as if they rather resented the interference. Then Curles Wright Feartred and at a word from him the crchestra began playing. The fickle arowd's interest changed to dancing and in a few moments the scene with Ted was forgotten.

After the last guest had departed a word on a cushion in the faint glow with Ted had been indeed trying.

"May I see you for a moment?" when into the living room and satively my word into the living room and satively my word in the faint glow of the doors to see that everything was fastened.
