Rude Rural Rhymes

Tobacco Etiquette
The gent with Camel or cigar should chuck the same where females are. It's hardly courteous, I ween, with other women on the scene to woo My Lady Nicotine. I know there's now and then a girl who helps to make the smoke wreaths curl. I often wonder how she scratches at certain times the needful matches. Her shoe soles, due to space restriction, can scarcely give the proper friction. At dinner, theatre or dance she cannot strike them on her pants, and even when she frees her kickers by clothing them in nifty nickers, I very seldom see her scrape a parlor match along her shape. Yea, tho some girls suck cigaroots and blow the smoke thru dainty snoots, I think the larger part, by cracky, of women folks despise tobacco. And even if they appreciate it, nine times in ten they really hate it. I've often heard the smokers quote a catchy rhyme that Kipling wrote A fellow had to choose one day between cigar and fiancée, and since he could not keep them both, he chose tobacco, nothing loath. But as for me there's no Havana, that I would substitute for Hannah.
