TO FARMERS

EAST YEARS PRICES TO MODIFY PLANTING

State's Grain Storage Likely to Increase as Cash Drops are Reduced, College Says. The report of how many acres of farmers intend to plant this year issued recently by the United States Department of Agriculture, shows that prices have, as usual, had a strong influence on planting. Last season was unusual in that production and as a consequence prices of several important crops were unusually low. The partial failure of the corn crop and the low prices for wheat, potatoes and cabbage are examples. Potatoes and cabbage are particularly favorable growing crops this year because of the unusually low prices. The report also shows that the acreage of corn is larger than in any year since 1914. The increase in the acreage of corn is due to the fact that the price of corn is higher than in any year since 1914. The report also shows that the acreage of wheat is smaller than in any year since 1914. This is due to the fact that the price of wheat is lower than in any year since 1914. The report also shows that the acreage of potatoes is smaller than in any year since 1914. This is due to the fact that the price of potatoes is lower than in any year since 1914. The report also shows that the acreage of cabbage is smaller than in any year since 1914. This is due to the fact that the price of cabbage is lower than in any year since 1914.

COUNTRY CHILDREN TO HELP SAVE TREES

State's Rural Schools Sent Special Programs for American Forest Week, April 27-May 3. The rural schools of New York have been sent programs from the state college of agriculture at Ithaca in connection with American Forest Week, April 27th, May 3rd. It is suggested that teachers give a forestry background to lessons in geography, language, arithmetic, reading and drawing all during the week, and emphasize the necessity of looking at the forests of the country in the light of a crop, to be used and renewed with the same attention that is given to crops on farms. The daily program during the first four days of the week is intended to lead logically up to planting day on Friday, May 1. The establishment of a school forest is desirable, but failing this, small oaks, maples, or elms may be taken from nearby woods and planted on the school grounds. Planting instructions are given in the September, 1921, Rural School Leaflet. President Coolidge this year proclaimed forest week to take the place of what has previously been known as forest protection week and urges in his proclamation its observance by all interested in saving and renewing the forests of the nation.

Rude Rural Rhymes

Southern Slopes This land where I spend my days, this Ithaca that all men praise, has hillsides sloping forty ways. Most tardily the spring is felt, the ice and snow too slowly melt, and not till May the flowers come forth upon those slopes that face the north. But, kindly patches looking south first feel the kiss of April's mouth. Earth's thawing veins in streamlets gush, and the they give us mud and slush, thru dead, brown leaves the violets break, in every breeze the wind-flowers shake, and other blossoms, many a one, arise to greet their lord, the sun. Here is a parable, I wis, for human life is much like this. I know some men, you know them too, who face the north in all they do. For them the winter lingers late with frosts of bitterness and hate. Forever set on selfish ends, they have no joys, they make no friends. Life is too short for any gent in shade and gloom to rest content. On many a pleasant southern slope, shine rays of love and faith and hope. If you have woe, let no man know it, for you are glad to get the sun. (Copyright, 1925, by the author.)

STRONG FOR ONION SETS. Consider how the onion whose little life is young, His autumn growth, was and so He is in spring "all set." Onion sets are little were planted late and so on so that they are much growth. They are time to make up for the crop is easier. Stick them in early, not an inch apart, and later thin out every other one to use as green onions or pickles. That leaves the sprouts four inches apart. They should make good sized bulbs for late summer, fall or winter use. Onion sets come in assorted colors: red, white and yellow. Some do not open now list Ebenezer onion sets. They are yellow but not the common yellow sets. Ebenezer are superior to any other sets in flavor. In New York, a three year rotation is best to be too short.
