THE PAGEANT AT CAMP SHENAWANA

Written Especially for Andover News by Wallace Cummings.

It looked like rain, but the editor said it wouldn't and it did not. So, you see, editors are right sometimes. We arrived at Camp Shenawana at a very early hour in order that we might investigate. If Moses Van Campen had been with us, we would have approached the place with guns for it surely looked like an Indian camp. Every boy was painted and dressed for the evening event which began at seven o'clock.

The stage was an open space on the edge of the wood, which had for its back drop Mother Nature's own hand-painted scenery—the wood and for side wings they had the thickets and deep wood.

The audience sat on eight large bleachers which were placed in a semicircle around the stage.

The people were noisily talking to each other when from within the depths of the wood could be heard the beat of the tom-tom. The audience slowly quieted and five Indians appeared, each one made a prayer to the Great Spirit and they then took their places to one side of the stage and built there a council fire at which the chief told them of instances in the life of Moses Van Campen, which were acted out on the stage.

Episode I.

This scene was a wrestling match which took place at Fort Reid in Pennsylvania, on the Susquehanna river. Captain Gasking (Joseph Clarke) in command of the fort received a challenge for a wrestling match from the white squatters, called Indian-land men. Wrestling was a common exercise of the time, and there had been some dispute between the two groups as to their prowess. The squatters had a high opinion of their own ability. Van Campen (Don Stannard of Wellsville) was chosen to represent the fort group, and McCormick (Dighton Burdick of Alfred) the squatters. The match ended in a victory for Van Campen.

By the way, Robert Common, a well known Andover lad, was a member of the squatter group and played his part well.

Episode II.

The next scene was land near Eve's Swamp, Lancaster county, Pa. Lieut. Van Campen was in nominal charge of a party of soldiers being more familiar with the country than his immediate superior, Captain Salmon (Don Cummings of Wellsville), who accompanied him. After making camp for the night the two officers found that their men had taken all the available places about the camp fire. Wishing to try the spirit of their men, and both having fun-loving dispositions they resolved to obtain the places by the fire for themselves by means of a trick, so they threw an axe against a stump and the men awoke and stayed on guard while the two went to the fire and went to sleep.

Episode III.

The incident of this episode occurred near Newton, the present site of Elmira. Van Campen was in the Sullivan forces in the battle below Newton he encountered Shongo and wounded him, leaving him for dead. Some years later Shongo came to Angelica with a group of Indians from Canadea, who often visited Van Campen. While conversing with Van Campen at his home the battle of Newton was discussed and Van Campen discovered that Shongo was the Indian with whom he had had the encounter.

Episode IV.

Van Campen, together with Pike (Guilford Cass), and Pence (Gordon York), were captured by the Indians. On the way to the General Assembly place of the Indians, the incident shown in this episode took place. The captives planned to kill their captors, the Indians. Pike, at the critical moment failed; all the Indians save one were killed by Van Campen and Pence. Mohawk (Fred Jennings), a chief, started to escape, but seeing the attack came only from the prisoners, made a dash towards the guns, but was intercepted by Van Campen. After a severe struggle Mohawk with his own tomahawk and get free from him. Mohawk fled.

The laugh in this scene occurred when Van Campen scalped his captors and the red flesh was seen where their scalps were.

Episode V.

Van Campen was captured by Indians under the command of Lieut. Nellis, a British officer. They took him to Canadea where he was forced to run the gauntlet. He came through safely without being struck, and because of this was called by the Indians "Shenawana," meaning a brave man, which has been chosen as the name of the camp.

Every Progressive Farmer knows the value of well grown milk cows. He knows that heifers that calve weighing twelve to fifteen hundred pounds with their first calves are worth double those weighing five to seven hundred pounds.

Can You Produce These Big Heifers?

If you have bred your cows to good, big, purebred bulls, and if you feed the young stock liberally upon The Park & Pollard Universal Ration you will increase the size of your mature herd 25% to 50%.

Read all about it in Mr. Park's latest book "Live Stock in the East" free.

The Park & Pollard Co., Inc.

Our opinion of Universal Ration is best evidenced by the fact that we have booked 100 tons for future delivery. We would not have done so if we were not satisfied that we could maintain the growth and condition and milk production with this feed, and also effect a saving in feed bills of more than $1200.00 annually.

Very truly yours,
