Horrible, But Welcome. One Minute After I Died. Quality, Plus Advertising. The Power of Mothers.

Our navy will make experiments with what is called the "death stroke," an interesting invention guaranteed to destroy all life with which it comes in contact within a radius of twenty miles.

It is horrible but WELCOME. Make war dangerous ENOUGH and war will stop. Don't believe the ignorant millions who think that a thing always will be, because it always HAS been.

Two men pointing automatic pistols at each other's hearts don't shoot. That happens only when one of them gets the drop.

Mr. Aldrich, prosperous lawyer, is sued for divorce. His wife alleges cruelty. He replies, "My only cruelty was almost stoning her to death with jewelry." He spent $175,000 on jewelry, gave the lady a $35,000 sable coat, a chinchilla coat costing $8,000, and securities worth $100,000.

The lady replies that not sables, not jewels, not securities, not even the fur of the chinchilla, most interesting little animal, can give real happiness.

She's right. "But in this world we measure everything with money." The lady's lawyer, George Gordon Battle, demands for her alimony of $75,000 a year. The Court can give her that; it cannot give her love and affection.

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN made man speeches worth hearing, and the world applauded.

What would the world give if he could come back and make another speech of thirty seconds on "What I Saw, What I Felt, What I Knew, Where I Went, the Minute After I Died?"

The British Government, to fight depression in British trade, will undertake international world advertising on a gigantic scale. This proves again what every body knows, that Great Britain has statesmen working for her.

Five billion dollars will be appropriated at first to boom colonial goods. The idea of the British Empire, solid and sound as a steel bullet, is that QUALITY, PLUS ADVERTISING, can overcome any trade depression.

Anybody can stand poverty, because almost everybody is compelled to stand it. We have plenty of practice. Few can stand prosperity.

Farm lands on the edge of Detroit have boomed, and farmers have sold out at prices never dreamed of. Now fifteen of the suddenly rich according to doctors, are nervously unbalanced. The shock was too much for them. In poverty they could have kept their balance indefinitely.

Two young roughts, each a gang leader, engaged in a fist fight, and a blow on the head stretched Anthony de Luca, seventeen, dead on the sidewalk.

The police will do something about this, because it wasn't a "regular fighters," with ropes around the fighters, ruffians watching and and gate receipts that make it profitable to violate the law. How long will the States disgrace themselves by licensing brutality?

The marriage of a young girl in the Vanderbilt family has caused newspaper discussion. A Protestant Bishop performed the ceremony, altho the mother is a Catholic and her daughters were brought up in the Catholic faith.

All that is the business of the family and those immediately concerned. But in one statement made by the family you observe the ancient wisdom of the Catholic church.

When young Mr. Vanderbilt, a Protestant, married Miss Fair, a Catholic, it was stipulated on the mother's behalf that all daughters born of the union should be brought up in the Catholic church. There is wisdom. Daughters become mothers, influence the children and the men about them, and form the next generation.

The church that has the mothers on its side is the church that will create and guide the children and influence the men.

THE STORY WITHOUT A NAME

At the Auditorium Saturday Evening, August 15.

Alan Holt, scientist and radio expert, has just perfected his triangulator or death ray machine while experimenting for the U. S. Government.

Mark Drakma, an international spy, and his cronies attempt to steal the jealously-guarded invention and learn its secrets. But to keep it from falling into the hands of enemy, Mary Walsworth, daughter of Admiral Walsworth, destroys the delicate mechanism when Drakma attacks Holt, her fiancé.

To force Holt to reveal his secret, they place the girl on a veritable floating hell—one of Drakma's run-running ships, manned by a crew of cut-throats. Holt, in turn, is left alone on an island and given everything necessary to build a new triangulator. He and the girl are given low-powered radio sets—that the girl might warn Holt of any danger, as Drakma put it. His real idea is to torture Mary and have her complain to Holt so as to have him hasten the making of the machine to free her.

Admiral Walsworth broadcasts a message that his daughter has been kidnapped. Holt, who has built a power generator for his set, picks up the message and informs the battleship of the whereabouts of the girl and himself and of their danger. He also picks up cries of help from the girl and starts out for the runner on a frail raft he has built.

The crew of the schooner are fighting for the privilege of having the girl when Holt comes aboard. With the aid of a belaying pin he is successfully holding off the crew when Drakma's yacht comes alongside. The spy, who had also received Holt's message to the dreadnaught, is about to take the pair with him when the battleship is sighted bearing from the man-of-war makes him change his mind.

The Admiral comes aboard and tells Holt that the government is ready to reward him for his invention. Holt wants to know if the Admiral is willing to give him some reward of his own. The Admiral looking at Mary, understands and smilingly gives his consent.

ing down upon them fast. Drakma tries to make his escape, but a shot "WORLDLY GOODS"

At the Auditorium, Wednesday Evening, August 19th.

Eleanor Lawson (Agnes Ayres), twenty, pretty and independent, is secretary to the manager of a big department store. Clifford Ramsay, the manager, is deeply infatuated with the girl tho he has never told her of his love. On her part, love and marriage are far from her thoughts. Her mind is on a career.

Fred Hopper, a glib-talking, breezy auto salesman whose mind runs to building air castles and whose dream is of future millions, sells himself to Eleanor so well that she forgets her vow never to marry, really believes his wondrous schemes will come true and accepts.

The honeymoon is hardly over when the air castles come tumbling down. The furs and autos, the diamonds and fine raiment he promised her she finds to be fantasies, not material things. Bill collectors arrive in groups. The climax comes when Hopper, flitting from job to job, is finally out of work. His wife decides it is up to her to return to business. She obtains a position in the store where she was formerly employed. Fred is furious, but Eleanor finally wins him over; and he swallows his pride and goes to Ramsay for a job.

While waiting in an outer office he accidentally overhears a conversation regarding a big real estate deal which gives him a "hunch." He secures an option on the property with money loaned him by an old flame and realizes a couple of hundred thousands on the transaction. The wife hears of the "affair" with the married woman and goes to Ramsay for help and advice. He suggests the divorce court so she can marry him when she is free. Hopper is summoned to the attorney's office by a fake telegram from Mr. and Mrs. Lawson. Left alone in the private office, Fred and the girl come to an understanding, after which he tells his wife that they are rich and all his promises are to be materialized.

ALL IN THE DAY'S WORK

Must Machinery Be Ugly?

Not in the electric power industry!

It has been well said that beauty results from the perfect adaptation of some thing to some purpose. And Niagara Falls can show you a great 70,000 horse power generator that is the perfection of majestic beauty in machinery.

A visit to the great power plants at Niagara Falls is a revelation in the successful combination of beauty with utility.

The Niagara Falls Power Company sells electricity at the lowest average price received by any generating system on the North American Continent.

Discovers New Wonder of the Sea

Six month's exploration in the Sargossa sea and off the Galapagos islands, netted many new specimens of the sea for the Nat'l Museum of Natural History by the Dr. Wm. Beebe expedition which just returned. Deep sea fishes with "snow window" or transparent stomachs; others with "lighting" plants of their own; some of the wonders brought back.
