PRACTICAL INSTRUCTIONS IN HOME SEWING

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

For the Little Girl's School Dress

This winsome little school frock of checked challis is embroidered in the wild rose cross-stitch pattern that is given here. A deep and a light tone of pink embroidery wool are used for the flowers and the leaves are green.

You merely fill in the squares of the checked material as indicated by the pattern. The quickest method is to make the diagonal stitches first and then work back, crossing each of these stitches as I have shown in the diagram sketch at the lower left. You will probably want to save this pattern as it is an attractive one to use on many different garments, as well as household linens.

Cut Throat With Razor

Aquilla Gould, a well known farmer of the town of Lyndon, killed himself by slashing his throat with a razor with which he had just shaved himself the morning of October 4th. He had been in ill health for some time and for three or four weeks had seemed despondent, his family say. About 14 years ago he had spent a few months in Gowanda asylum, and it is supposed that his rash act was caused by a recurrence of his mental trouble.

After shaving himself, Mr. Gould passed thru the room where the family were sitting and went into the woodshed, where apparently he seated himself on a couch and slashed his throat deeply. He died at once before help could be summoned.

Home-grown feeds are cheapest.

The state college of agriculture at Ithaca has a new bulletin on methods of testing and determining relative values of milk. A card with the sender's address on it, asking for E 116, will bring it.

Rude Rural Rhymes

The Law

I've entertained since I drew breath some varied views of life and death, but this at last is understood, if I want to be happy I've got to be good. God does not wait around, I won't punish us upon the spot. He turns us loose in faith and hope and gives us all a lot of rope. Yes, often when we sin a bit, we seem to get away with it, and, as the Good Book says, we see the wicked flourish like a tree. But tho the wheels turn slow you bet, the mills of God will grind us yet. The universe is deep and wide, yet has no place where we can hide, when we've not acted as we should; if we want to be happy we've got to be good. True, goodness is no guarantee of present joy for you and me. Some debts from previous lives, I guess, still press for payment more or less. Perhaps we pay an overplus, some part of it vicious. You must not think that I pretend to know the purpose and the end. But sometimes even I can see the laws of life lambasting me. And ever with increasing years more plain to me the law appears. I would not change it if I could—if I want to be happy I've got to be good.

FIFTH ANNUAL DISPLAY AND SALE

LATEST STYLE TEXTILES

LASTS ONE WEEK--WEDNESDAY, OCT. 14 to WEDNESDAY, OCT. 21

The entire Main Floor will be one great exposition of Silks, Wools, Silks and Cottons, and Cottons, the finest products of the best American and foreign mills.

We have had ample evidence that these Fabric Style Shows of ours are popular.

This year we assure our patrons that we shall excel any previous effort in the magnitude and comprehensive showing of textiles. We feel sure that you will feel well repaid for your attendance. We also realize that we need your co-operation to make it a success. The glorious colorings, the exquisite designing, and the perfect weaving of these carefully chosen textiles will transform this store into a thing of beauty and joy.

Again in a carefully planned and executed display of this kind you will be better able to visualize them. Arrangements have previously been made with certain mills and importers to give us exclusive designs and in exclusive lengths so that the woman who stresses individuality can here find that satisfaction in the selection of her own material. This store for two consecutive years took third and second prizes in the National Silk Week Display. While there is no contest on this year, we shall try and merit our friends' approval of our efforts toward artistry in display.

In this advertisement we could not convey to the readers a satisfactory description of these rare fabrics. Cold, black and white print can ever do it. So for this reason a personal inspection is necessary. Hence this Style Fabric Show.
