Keep Your Community Alive

HERE is nothing worse than a dead community. Try as hard as it may to conceal the facts, the truth is written all over it, so that he that runs may read. No camouflage or bluff can conceal the true situation from anyone who comes within the limits of the community. The worst part about it is that once dead a community never survives. The fact that it seldom can "come back" is easily explained.

The growing and prosperous community is the one that can attract new residents as well as capital. It is one that can offer attractive inducements to the outlying investor, whose faith is built up in the progressive and co-operative spirit of its own community residents. A prosperous community is the same as a large corporation. They are stockholders, and as such look carefully to it that its affairs are administered in such a manner that it pays a good substantial dividend. This can only be accomplished by buying in your community, keeping your money in circulation so it will come back to you. Patronize your merchants, encourage them to expand in a business way. The more you buy from them the greater their turnover. It is your guarantee of fresh stocks, the latest styles, and a 🛞 perpetual business expansion. The growth of your mercantile inshould you not be a community booster? Dollar for dollar, you can buy as well in Andover, and, in fact, better, than elsewhere. besides you know who you are dealing with. If goods purchased are not satisfactory, your merchants are only too willing to exchange them. Think this over. It is only fair to both interests.

EXT SUNDAY is Mother's Day, a day set aside for honoring ALL Mothers; old and young, rich and poor, far or near. This day is observed in different ways—white flowers are worn, telegrams are sent to Mothers in distant places, others write letters; but fortunate indeed is the person who can be with that dearest of Mothers on this day and personally honor her in some way. If your Mother is not living, find some time during the day to meditate upon the high ideals she held before you; and honor her memory by upholding and fostering those ideals. Then, too, there are many other Mothers not to be forgotten on this day. The Mothers of our soldiers who fought in the World War deserve so much. Let's some one remember the poor, little old mothers in our charitable institutions with no one who really seems to care. The faithful, patient mother in some cottage, living alone, perhaps, and watching the mail each day, for some word from the boy who seeks a fortune in some distant city; always believing she'll be remembered sometime. Let us, someone, remember the Mother's of wayward sons and daughters; Mothers who start, in the dead of night with anguish, thinking, perhaps, she was the one who failed. We can remember the Mothers in prayer, who sorrowing wait-outside grey, grim prison walls, for one brief moment with their boys. Then the young Mother, just beginning that uncertain role in life. We hope all these Mothers will be remembered by someone on Sunday--MOTHER'S DAY.
