mer, but that he is taking a vacation for the change casionally.

The United States public health service indorses the open air change for indoor workers and for those together, we could have some new hard-surfaced road whose occupations keep them outdoors it would reverse the prescription.

This seems logical if vacation means change-and it can't have any other meaning. There is recreation in doing for a small part of the day something different from what we are engaged in doing most of the day. The health service also advises the vacationist t get new ideas. Therein is the advantage of seeking new environment in vacation time, meeting strange people and getting the point of view that others may hold. All folks are interested if touched on the right. Few indeed but have some information of value to impart if it lies only in the cocksureness of the speaker that he had plumbed the depths of human knowledge. Information that isn't true is often as interesting as that which isn't fiction.

On the other hand you may hear much of truth that has developed from experience. The vacationist who keeps eyes and ears open and is as friendly as others are willing to be with him, short of lending money, will be able to pick up information that may have great value.

The golden rule is a good one to follow but the difficulty is the number of people-who want to lead the procession.

And yet this ancient pastime has some merit. More keenly than ever should it challenge out attention, because it harks back to a day when life was simpler. It carries us back to remote villages and countrysides at a time when the world was barely making itself heard, even in the great cities. Quiet days, they were, when men got their exercises at their work and didn't find it necessary as men do now to work at

The game of marbles satisfied to the fullest extenti-

One improved with practice, of course, and might i become exceedingly skillful at it, but the nerve-racking apprenticeship for a perfection in a game like golf, for instance, was not needed to enjoy a game of marbles. It recommends itself to the novice and to the master; to old and to young. ### No Trespassing

"NO TRESPASSING. Keep Out." This is the sign | | It that greets motorists often when they select a cool secluded spot in the country to have lunch. As a rule it is resented but it should not be. Land owners who use this means to protect their property generally have good reasons because thoughtless people have abused!" the privilege farmers once willingly extended.

The many have to suffer for the few who have im-1' posed a heavy penalty on the great mass of law-abiding! citizens. It is difficult to convince the average land owner that all who want to enjoy the country in the summer time are not destructionists.

Farmers have been put to expense cleaning up? after campers and picnickers, and serious damage has been done by these offenders against common decency. Some people have no scruples in taking possession of an inviting woods without showing the owner the (courtesy of asking him for permission. They spread' their lunch and enjoy it in the open woods, but defile! the grounds by leaving remnants of food, papers and tin cans. Often they "register" by carving their names and initials in the bark of trees and start fires which kill the lower branches of trees. Sometimes they leave !! camp fires to spread and cause serious property loss. Campers should refrain from cutting fences, be' careful with fires, and remove all waste paper, remains fof edibles and cans off the property. In other words, I'

SOMETHING FOR NOTHING—DID YOU EVER GET IT?

VERYONE knows that you cannot get something for nothing and yet seven people out of ten will "fall" for a scheme that promises it. It is not men alone who fall for the fake tailoring propositions. Take the women for example.

Recently there has been brought out from the mothinfected closets of the past, "The Women's Suit Clubs." Twenty years ago, you could buy almost anything from a chair to a threshonstration at Independence this week | ing machine thru "clubs" and "Men's Suit Clubs," "Women's Suit Clubs" and "Watch Clubs," were as common as fleas on a dog and , those who joined them had about as much trouble as the dog. Some "bright minded" persons, recalling how the people "fell" for the plan then, have revived it and are now doing a flourishing business in women's "suit clubs." Here's how it works:

The agent calls and shows some wonderful photographs of clever models dressed in fine suits or elegant coats. The scheme is that you pay one dollar to join the "club." Each week numbers repre-There will be preaching service senting each member are put in a hat and drawn. If your number and Sunday school as usual the first | is the lucky one, then a beautiful $50 tailored suit comes to you without another cent. In short, you get a $50 suit for one dollar, for when you draw your suit, your weekly payment ceases. If you , don't win a suit the first week, you pay a dollar a week until your

On the face, the whole plan is a "fake" because we all know you cannot get something for nothing. But in a certain town recently, 125 women joined the "suit club" and the agent drew down $125 a week for four weeks. A total of $500 and then left. Four > women drew suits. They looked like the real thing but after the , "suit club agent" had gone the wife of a local dry goods merchant who fell for the siren's song of chance looked into the matter a bit further and found her husband could duplicate at wholesale the very suits that were drawn for $18.75 each or a total of $75 and , the "suit club agent" took $425 profit out of that town by fishing four weeks for suckers.

It is dollars to buttons if any slick artist blows into that town talking "clubs," he or she will be shown the door, at the same time church at the Grange Hall, Friday being advised that they have local merchants there who are "square evening at 8 o'clock, July 16. All & shooters," taxpayers, home town boosters and good public citizens interested are invited to attend. Ice 3 and they'll patronize home industry.
