When the well-dressed woman slips into her Winter Wrap she expects something more of it than mere utility. A coat is always, or should be, a fitting complement to any frock worn beneath it-good lines, lovely material and that important undefinable quality, smartness, can combine to make a garment fit all the requirements of an hour or any place.

This season's coats are agreed on the type of their materials. They must be of a soft, thick, velvet-like texture, no matter how many new and fascinating names they may assume, to attain their individual-

Veloria, ormandale, carmine, lustrosa, suedes and needlepoint are all to be found in this group at $69.50.

Next in line come the furs that lend their warmth and beauty for luxurious trimming. The long silk pelts are in favor-wolf, fox, vicuna fox, beaver and natural squirrel, are furs that are used only in better coats.

In color, fashion provides a wealth of variety from which to choose. All the season's newest colors. You find them at $69.50.
