Sept. 16.—The community fair is now the attraction on Wellsville's fair grounds. Like turning back the pages of history, when we were set for the Wellsville fair and it ended.

Mrs. J. Wahl and Miss Nell Horn served dinner to the threshing crew at the Horan homestead last Thursday.

Considerable trucking is being done for Lynch Bros., of material or constructing new silos.

Mrs. Ed. McAndrew and Miss Jora were up from Andover Friday to do their bit for the threshing after a busy week in this locality he machine has again "passed on."

Another wee lassie has been added to our population, a little daughter having been born to Mr. and Mrs. Leo Horan in St. James Mercy hospital, Hornell, last Saturday. Mother and babe are doing well, and daddy wears a happy smile.

Many motorists passed over the hill Sunday but the finest appearing car of the number was the one driven by Aderyn Trask of Fulmer Valley.

Gus Padden of Andover helped Leo Horan with his work last week. Cutting of the big corn crop is now the main industry.

A family of the Sweets are now occupying the John Dean farm home.

The Dean and Dougherty families were entertained Sunday, at the Danhier home in Wellsville.

Miss Gladys Whitney returned Sunday to her home in Andover.

The present rain is most welcome after the hot drying spell, but too late to benefit the potato crop.

BY RAYMOND WOODLEY

AUTOCASER WASHINGTON BUREAU

Washington, D. C., Sept. 15.—Evidence is piling up here that the coming session of Congress which will meet in a little over two months from now, will produce some of the most vicious attacks ever made on a President in recent times. Any stand Mr. Hoover sees fit to take is immediately assailed by his enemies and his announcement that he will veto any further payments to the soldiers on their bonus has led to a roar from all those wanting to curry favor with the veterans.

It is considered likely that the soldiers' bonus will be used as the main weapon of attack against the President when Congress meets. The outcry against his veto, if he should oppose the bill, will probably be louder and more bitter than that which greeted President Wilson's attempt to make the United States a member of the League of Nations.

All this is extremely displeasing to Mr. Hoover, who is not a fighter and who has more than once expressed himself with much bitterness regarding newspapers which like to play up all news about the friction always present at the seat of any nation, and particularly so at the capital this year. Mr. Hoover is not a good publicist. He has never appreciated the angle of the Washington correspondents, who want action in their news and not drab accounts of things achieved.

That is the only kind of news that the President can understand or that he is in sympathy with. The consequence is that he is more out of touch with the sources of news than almost any President since the turn of the century. He is the exact opposite of President Roosevelt, who was never happy unless he was in the center of a controversy which got on the front page of every newspaper in the nation.

Mr. Hoover's personal friends have often advised him to come out with the plain statement of his position, that he is not interested in politics as such, nor in the petty bickering that most politicians indulge in when they are jockeying for position. He has refused to issue any formal statements, preferring to remain the target of abuse and leaving it to posterity to vindicate his official acts. Obviously this condition does not make Mr. Hoover a good presidential candidate and his main strength will lie in the vast army of his appointees. These can be relied upon to deliver enough votes to insure his nomination, and it is the campaign that will follow that will test his strength with the rest of the country.

The most uncertainty in a slate-making way that exists right now, is regarding vice presidential nominees. Lately James Hamilton Lewis, the suave and courtly Senator-elect from Illinois is bulking large in the public eye. It is no secret that the powerful Illinois delegation will cast its 58 votes for Lewis for President on the first ballot at the Democratic convention, not that Illinois expects him to become the party candidate. It will merely be for trading purposes, and Lewis unquestionably would add considerably to the strength of the ticket, his only weakness being that he is not a millionaire, but an extremely modest individual in a financial way.

Geographically, Lewis is in a class by himself. He was born in Virginia, raised in Georgia, moved to Oregon and served in Congress from that state. Then he went to Illinois and won election to the Senate against the immensely popular Ruth Hanna McCormick, and will take his seat for the first time in December. In addition he is a master of many languages and repeatedly addresses Polish audiences in their own language, the Germans in theirs, while he is a great French scholar, even among Frenchmen. He also has a good grounding in Italian and the Scandinavian languages, an asset of immense value, even to a man who has a natural gift as a spellbinder in English.

It is surprising the interest being taken in this city by the utterances and doings of "Coin" Harvey, otherwise William Hope Harvey, author of "Coin's Financial School," a book that nearly made Bryan president in 1896. Harvey, who is 80, has started a new party that he calls the "Party of Prosperity." It is designed to win the support of dissatisfied farmers and unemployed industrial workers.

He has devised a platform that promises them the relief they are seeking. His main supporters will come from those dubbed "the lunatic fringe" by Theodore Roosevelt, but it may be that his party will be the seed from which the long-expected third party may grow, perhaps under another name. He gives voice to the discontent of his many.

Those who recall the campaign of 1896 will remember that his new theories of economics appeared in answerable to all the financiers until a young Chicago financier wrote an effective answer, under which the gold forces rallied and

LITTLE THINGS

Nothing is more interesting than to hear successful men reminisce about their careers. Recently, after a golf game, I had such an opportunity.

My companions were well-known lawyers.

One of them said: "I wasn't much of a student in college. I played on both the football and baseball teams, and I managed to graduate and go on thru law school."

"My first job was in the office of a country lawyer in a small city in Pennsylvania. There I really did work, preparing cases and trying them, and doing my best to master the profession."

"I could look forward to earning enough to marry on, but could see no chance of ever escaping from that small town."

"One Christmas I visited my folks in Boston, and while I was there a friend told me that a certain lawyer would like to meet me. I called at his office the next morning. We chatted for about an hour and then, out of a clear sky, he offered me a partnership. I was flabbergasted, but I managed to stammer an acceptance. I started in with him a month later. In that firm I spent ten very happy and profitable years."

"One day I summoned up courage to ask him how he ever happened to make me such an offer on so short an acquaintanceship."

"His answer was surprising. He said that for years he had been able to secure more business than he could properly handle. As a business getter he was a star; as an organizer of an efficient force he was a failure. He had hired brilliant young chaps out of law school, but somehow they never developed as he hoped. Being brilliant, they expected to get results easily, and if they were whipped a couple of times in court it broke their spirit."

"One night he went home and sat down before the fire to analyze his situation. He decided to look for an entirely different type of man; he listed the qualifications:

"1. The man must not be too smart. He must have the habit of working hard for his results."

"2. He must have been in college athletics, trained to fight for victory, and to keep up his chin in defeat."

"Having made this list, the lawyer asked his friends to recommend men who met the qualifications. One of them named me, and the lawyer remembered that he had once seen a football game in which I was badly smashed up but was still able to carry the ball across the line for a touchdown."

"So you see," my friend concluded, "it was that one little thing to which I never attached the slightest importance, that made my whole career."

When you hear stories like this, and I have heard many of them, it makes you think that there are no little things. No operation is so insignificant that a man can refuse to give it less than his best."

elects McKinley. The success of the reply won its author the vice-presidency of one of New York's greatest banks. Harvey's accomplishments in 1896 stamp him as a man not to be discouraged by the leaders of either of the big political parties.

Whenever you have some nagging ache or pain, take some tablets of Bayer Aspirin. Relief is immediate!

There's scarcely ever an ache or pain that Bayer Aspirin won't relieve—and never a time when you can't take it.

The tablets with the Bayer cross are always safe. They will not depress the heart, or otherwise harm you. Use them as often as they can spare you any pain or discomfort. Just be sure to buy the genuine. Examine the box. Beware of imitations.

Aspirin is the trade-mark of Bayer manufacture of monosaccharide ester of salicylic acid.
