EDITORIAL

JUST BORN

Well, folks, here we are—just out of the shell. All ready to give you satisfaction in all forms. We are here to give you the latest in school news, town gossip, vices cracks and prohibitions of all sorts. Here's how we, us and Co., are going to give our best to you. We have appointed, elected and forced some of our over-worked pupils, henpecked teachers and just the best of us (?) to aid in gathering all of the best news. There is an editor, his staff (not a cane), class reporters and faculty advisers. The typing is done by the commercial department; then it is up to the Andover News printing press, etc. Just a moment, folks, before closing, a bit of warning to you. Beware of the suspicious, sneaky, sly, sphinx-like SPY! Look for his column of overheard and overseen incidents. Who knows you may be next.

So long until next week.

IN MEMORIAM

Last week a shadow passed over our school when it was learned that Charles Howland had contracted a fatal disease. "Charlie" fought a losing fight for nearly a week, answering his summons on Saturday, October 10th.

"Charlie" was without doubt one of the best liked boys in this town. He was quiet and unostentatious in his relationships with everyone and was loved for the manliness and dependability of his character. Charlie has set up an enviable record as a student, maintaining an average of over 80 for his first two years in his 104 units. If he was able to pass sufficient subjects in the Regents this year he would have graduated in June.

He held the offices of vice president of the Junior Class and also the vice presidency of the Athletic Association. The latter is quite an honor since the office is usually held by a Senior.

"Charlie" was a splendid athlete, playing regular on the basketball, football and track teams. In his Freshman year in basketball he led his team mates in points scored in most of the games. The system last year utilized him more as a floor man so that although he did not score as many points he led his team in play.

We will miss you Charlie. Your death is a tragic loss to the life and welfare of your school, but we will always keep your picture in our hearts to urge us on when the going is the roughest.

The faculty and students of Andover High School wish to extend our sincerest condolences to his family at this time.

THE HI HERALD

The Andover News Naming Contest is over and the Andover High School paper is born and it has been named "The Hi Herald." Over 80 names were entered in the contest and Mr. Backus and Mr. Hardy, the judges, had a difficult time picking a winner. Out of the 13 leading names they finally decided on the name "The Hi Herald," suggested by Erland Kaiburn. He not only wins the dollar prize offered by the Andover News but he is honored by having his name appear over the news of the Andover schools. Erland is a humble Frosh and we figure a promising future for him. He has very little to say but maybe we can get him to say a few words today when he gets the prize.

THE EDITOR

The editor for this, the first issue of The Hi Herald, is Francis Cable. He and several of his staff have worked hard to get this issue out. With a little experience they hope to correct the many faults that they are bound to make; so be kind in your criticism. Francis Cable, the big Rochambeau avenue boy, will also edit next week's Hi Herald, so let's all get in and help him, the assistants and the reporters by getting in the news more promptly and in better form.

GATUSSI CAMP-FIRE GROUP
Mrs. Hardy's group of Camp Fire Girls had their regular meeting last Thursday night. Officers for the next six months were elected and all signed the new constitution. The officers elected were as follows:
President, Dorothy Oakes; vice-president, Helen Vickers; secretary, Florence Mulholland; treasurer, Leah Oakes; scribe, Helen Pope; song leader, Mary Spicce.

SOPHOMORE NEWS
Wilfred Gee, former Andover Hi student, visited with Fay Brown at school last Friday afternoon.

HEARD BY THE ???

Miss Savage (after devouring several defenseless hot dogs): "When I came to Andover I only weighed 107. Now look at me!"
Francis Cable: "Huh, that's nothing. When I came to Andover I only weighed 9 1/2."

Oliver Kemp (full to the ears): "O-h, me."
Mr. Perrone: "Why, Oliver, what is the matter?"

Oliver K.: "I can chew—but I can't swallow."

Jimmie Mulholland (finding a hair in his half-eaten hot dog): "Gee, it was a mongrel."

Miss McElree (after someone who did not go to the last Senior class weiner roast had finished telling her about it): "No, Joseph, I don't believe I can go with you to the Senior party. I have heard it's going to be a necking party."

T. Joe (heartbroken): "Aw now, please!"

A voice out of nowhere: "Sure, Miss McElree, Joseph ain't vicious."

Oliver (holding the bleached skull of an injun or cow, or sumpin' up to the firelight): "I wonder where all its brains can be?"

All those present in unison: "The same place where yours are."

I like to hear Johnny Croyle sing to the accompaniment of his guitar or banjo—to hear Pat sing "The Leader of the German Band" in his intimate style—somebody said it was falsetto.—To eat and drink until I can hold no more.—To sit around a blazing fire and sing old familiar songs unfamiliarly until the embers turn from red to grey and it is time to wake back thru briars and brambles over pitfalls and canyons, and drive home in a car that is not a car and by a driver that is not a driver. Then to say good-night and to roll in or out. Then to roll some more in nightmares or charred weiners, coated with mustard, clad in a roll, chasing the holes in doughnuts in and out of empty eye sockets of a bleached cow skull.

Signed "THE SPY"

FALL

Ain't this the beautiful time of the year,
Yew git up in the morning ready to cheer,
Jest filled up with lots of ambishun
And in your head there is a noshun
That the world belongs to yew.

Yew shiver and shake to get on your pants,
Yer feet are cold and yew jump 'an dance,
The sun comes up but there ain't no heat,
'Speshly on the bottom of yer feet,
But the world belongs to yew.

The leaves be uh fallin', thick and fast
Upon the cold, frost-covered grass,
The rooster's uh crowing, clear and loud
An' in the sky thar hain't a cloud,
An' up the stairs thar cums a smell
Of flapjacks, coffee, sausage and well

The world is jest made for Yew!

CLIPPINGS FROM EXCHANGES

For Better or Worse—
Perhaps you noticed on Thursday, Sept. 8th, a certain much decorated car going thru town. Across the back was a large sign on which was written "Just Married." If you were there, it probably did not take you very long to decide what had happened. Miss Evelyn Gardner became Mrs. Sydney Miles on that date. After a short trip thru Canada, the popular couple are back in town and "Sid" is back at school.

The student body wishes them lots of happiness.—From Wellsville High School Owl.

Big Towel Problem Solved at Last—
Hey! Who's got a towel? This was the eternal question that exists no more, since one broad-minded far-sighted individual of W. H. S. received an inspiration. As the result of this inspiration the boys and girls of W. H. S. have dry backs.

Note: The Andover H. S. boys and girls wish they could have dry backs this coming basketball season. Besides a supply of school towels we could also stand larger shower rooms with a dependable supply of warm water.—"One of the boys."

When Harvard Meets Yale (lock)
Altho Harvard continues to put Yale locks on the doors of her buildings the name "Yale" must not hereafter appear on the locks. The university has made a contract with the makers of Yale locks, which specifies that the name be omitted.—Fiat Lux, Alfred U.

THE LIFE OF MARTY BRILL

Marty Brill was born on a small farm, which was located about three miles north of Smethport, Pa.

From the ages eight to twelve Marty had to do most of the work on the farm. His father was inclined to be a bit lazy but he took a great interest in his son and determined to put him thru college.

Marty entered high school at Smethport at the age of 14 and in his Freshman year he went out for football. He tried hard to make a position on the team but he weighed only 120 pounds. When the coach told him to hand in his suit after he had been out to two practices, little did the coach know that he was talking to one of the world's greatest football players.

Marty didn't go out again until in his Senior year. He had been ill all thru his Sophomore and Junior years but now he weighed 160 pounds, was five feet eight inches tall and he was only 17 years old.

Marty played two games and after that he and three of his teammates were kicked off the team for breaking training rules. Shortly after this the Smethport team broke up and they haven't had a team since that year.

When Marty's father heard what he had done he threatened to take him out of school but he realized that he would graduate that year so he stayed in school.

After graduating, Marty knew that he did not have enough money to go to college. He worked for some time and saved enough money for his first year's tuition at Penn State University.

Marty had such a wonderful personality that he got along splendidly in college. In his Sophomore year he went out for football. He didn't play in a game all year until the last game of the season which was with Purdue. The score was tied nothing to nothing with about three minutes to play when "Shorty" Johnson, left-halfback for Penn was knocked out. When Marty saw this his words to the coach were pathetic.

"Let me go in," he cried.
"I can't do it, Marty. It's our last game and I can't take the chance," was the reply. "Tony, Tony. Where in hell is that boy?"

He was calling to "Tony" Mussaline, Marty's rival, for the position. The whistle blew and the coach jammed a helmet on Marty's head and sent him on the field with a good swift kick.

Mr. Perrone spent the week-end in Andover, Alfred, Wellsville, Elm Valley and other points in the neighboring vicinity.

Miss Holmes visited the folks in Alfred.

Miss Trenkle joined the Alumnae who traced their steps to Syracuse University the past week-end.

Miss Savage celebrated the brief vacation period by staying in and about Andover.

Miss McElree did a little traveling over the week-end.

Bobbie Hardy took his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hardy to visit his grandparents in Meridian.

Miss Kelley journeyed to West Almond to be with her parents.

Miss Paine accompanied Miss Trenkle to Waterloo where she stopped for the few day vacation.

Miss Jordan spent the week-end in Friendship.

Miss McLaughlin traveled to Avon where she visited relatives and friends.

Miss Beeman was at her home town, Ellicottville.

Miss Leo took a motor trip into Pennsylvania. Franklin was her destination.

Mrs. Schwarzenbach visited in Wellsville on Columbus Day.

Miss Baker was at home in Tip Top most of the time.

Marty never knew what this kick was for but maybe it was because he had to put him in and didn't want to.

Purdue had the ball on Penn's 40-yard line and the next play was a long forward pass. Marty intercepted it but as luck would have it was running towards Penn's goal when he caught it and as this was his first game in the season he got rattled and kept on running. He was tackled by one of his own players just as he fell across the line, making a touchdown for Purdue. This put Purdue ahead with a score 6-0. (Continued next week)

INJUNS vs. PALEFACES

As the years roll by incidents come up in our every day life which makes us think of the good old days when the Indian pitted his grey matter against that of the well known paleface. For many moons they fought against each other, aided by guns, arrows and fire-water. Always it seems as tho the paleface came out on top of the heap. This was proved last Saturday when the "Wellsville Whites" clashed on the gridiron with the "Salamanca Injuns." A fierce battle was fought with no one losing or gaining a scalp but Wellsville did have a touch down and another point. This goes to show the same superiority of the pale-face over the injuns now.
