Such questions as these arise in every active mind:

Why are we Christians? Why are we not Buddhists, or Confucianists, or Mohammedians, instead?

All Christian people should understand the reason for their faith. Here are seven evidences of Christianity:

1. We believe Christianity because of its source; 2. We believe Christianity because of its code; 3. We believe Christianity because of its advocates; 4. The Mission of Christianity furnishes a reason for believing; 5. We believe in Christianity because of its requirements; 6. We have faith in Christianity on account of its conflicts; 7. We believe in Christianity because of its victories.

Rude Rural RhymesThe Unrefined Maple

Now that winter's almost done, Snow all soggy with the sun from the darkly leaf-stained mold where the maple roots have hold, something comes up in the sap, gives it character and snap, gives the maple syrup savor, gives the maple sugar flavor. Something's lacking in the cane, in the beet and in the grain;
sweetness there but never this true ingredient of bliss. Ask the scientist what thing gives the maple tang and ting; some impurity he'll name as a reason for the same. When cold winter's reign is done, when the sap has learned to run, get some maple syrup hot, pan of snow as like as not. When it's cooked enough to waxy, gummy-like and satisfy, tilt the pan a little—so—till it dribbles on the snow. Get me started chaw-ing it, all I lack is sense to quit. Tho' the maple seems to me, straight and upright as can be, seems she ain't too pison pure; all of us are glad I'm sure—like some rhymes I have in mind, kind o' sweet but unrefined.

BUSINESS BETTERSAYS MASON

Almond Typewriter Man Sees Marked Improvement and Thinks the Girls All Look Sweet.

That the typewriter is a real business barometer and industrial fore-caster is the belief of Robert Mason, the typewriter man of Almond, who was in town today, and who smilingly declared that in his weekly trips all over western New York and northern Pennsylvania he found business of all kinds picking up. Mason said he had seen more smiling faces in the last month than he had seen in the last two years. He said he found the tendency to do more thinking and work and less talk. In fact, in some offices he had recently visited all talk of depression was absolutely taboo.

During the interview a merchant came along and greeted him with: "Hello, Mason, how do you find business?"

"How do I find business," smiled Mr. Mason. "Why I find business by going out and looking for it."

"Doggone if he ain't about right. And it took an office equipment man to tell us merchants what's wrong with us. The first thing, I guess, is to increase my newspaper advertising space. Then I better get a 'phonsel girl and another telephone put in, and—"

"What's a 'phonsel girl," we quizzed.

"A 'phonsel is a girl who sells by telephone only, or tips off the customers on the arrival of something special they had asked for. If we can't lure the women to the store we'll sic the 'phonsel girl on 'em. By the way, Mason, I guess you better come over to my office and see what you can do to make things look as if old General Procterity had at last arrived and announced his intention of sticking around for some time."

"That's fine," observed Mason, who modestly admits that he is sort of an advance agent of business, because with the first signs of returning business a manufacturer or merchant must get his office in shape, get his old stenographer back and forget the last two years.

Asked which town in Western New York could boast of the prettiest stenographer or secretary, he blushed, coughed, and finally stammered: "You see, I am too busy to answer that now. I will say that they are all looking sweeter and more cheerful since business picked up. So long."

Reed FavorsProhibition

In reply to a petition sent to U. S. Congressman Daniel Reed, Mrs. Bertha Pingrey, president of the local W. C. T. U., received the following reply:

Mrs. Bertha B. Pingrey, Andover, New York.
My Dear Friend:

Your recent communication in support of the prohibition law has been received. I have been in Congress 12 years and I have stood in favor of the Eighteenth Amendment and the prohibition law at all times and under all conditions. This has been my attitude in the past and this will be my attitude in the future.

While people have been very loyal to me in my district and have given me strong political support, I feel that with the highly organized methods that are being used in an endeavor to defeat those who stand for the dry cause, those who appreciate my position ought to be very active politically and see to it that all friends of the dry cause take an active part in the primary and the election.

I hear many of the men who have been ardent in their support of the dry cause complain that their dry friends at home do not take the trouble to register and vote. I know that you will do your part in your community to see that all my friends support me in the primary and at election time.

With best wishes, I am
Yours sincerely,
DANIEL A. REED.

P. S.—I am having your resolution entered in the Congressional Record.

Tell 'Em Quick and Often

Mr. Wrigley, who was 70, gave this philosophy of his salesmanship several years ago: "Tell 'em quick and tell 'em often. You must have a good product and something that people want, for it's easier to row downstream than up. Explain to folks plainly and sincerely what you have to sell, do it in as few words as possible and keep everlastingly at them.

"Advertising is pretty much like running a furnace. You've got to keep on shoveling coal. Once you stop stoking, the fire goes out. It's strange that some people's imagination can't compass this fact."

Mr. Wrigley was a traveling salesman when other youngsters his age still were poring over school books. He married at 20 on $10 a week and started his rise with an empty pocketbook.

AMERICAN LEGION INDOOR CIRCUS

Robinson Bros. Circus and Trained Animal Show Is Coming to Hornell Armory Week of March 28.

Captain Arlie Conover, commanding officer of Co. K, 108th, Hornell, when interviewed this past week about the mammoth indoor circus to be staged in the Armory March 28th to April 2nd, was very optimistic regarding the outcome.

Mr. Conover mentioned that the advance ticket sale was exceeding their expectations and with the co-operation of the American Legion of Hornell and several posts in adjoining towns, that the sale of tickets will in all probability run close to 25 thousand before the opening day. The captain also said that he had visited several indoor shows staged in different Armories thruout the state and that he believes that Hornell with its drawing population of 75,000 can support such an event and it is his intention to make it an annual winter celebration.

The Robinson Bros. Circus and Trained Wild Animal Show who are furnishing all the attractions is one of the bigger one-day circuses of the country and their show is composed of some of the best all-star performers of the world. A later announcement will be made of the program in the columns of this paper.

"It is hoped," said Capt. Conover, "that the entire community will put

W. F. O'CONNELLEconomy Costs Money

Yes, strange as it may seem, economy costs money when it causes you to cut down on your expenditures for things that are necessary for your comfort or welfare. And it is doubly expensive when it causes you to save on expenditures that, if wisely made, would return to you with a handsome profit added. Short-sighted saving has kept lots of people in the rut of toilsome grind and put many a business on the road to a bankrupt's court. Prudence must, of course, be exercised at all times in financial matters, but too much caution in personal and business affairs is often worse than foolhardy squandering.

An advertisement in the ANDOVER NEWS doesn't cost a great deal of money, but it will return big dividends in the way of increased business and multiplied profits. Don't be niggardly in the amount of money you set aside for advertising—you can't afford to be.

An advertisement in the ANDOVER NEWS delivers your sales message to hundreds of prospective buyers residing in this community, while your window displays are seen by only the few who pass your store windows.

The ANDOVER NEWS goes into nearly every home and place of business throughout this section. It carries to its hundreds of readers not only all the news of this vicinity, but the sales messages of its merchants and business men as well. If you have anything to sell you cannot afford to be unrepresented in its pages. Your economy would be too expensive—it wouldn't be good business.
