Rod and Gun Club May Build House

A committee of three from the board of directors of the Wellsville Rod and Gun Club will investigate the advisability of building a club house on the Duke Flats property owned by the club. The committee was named at a meeting of the board of directors held last week.

The size and type of building needed and an estimate of the cost of construction will be investigated by the committee composed of T. C. Major, J. B. Martin and W. O. Taylor. The plan to provide a club house which would serve as a meeting place has been under consideration for some time. Directors of the organization feel that interest in the organization would be stimulated by the building of a lodge.

Increase Service

Electric power, sufficient to care for all of Wellsville's needs, will be available after July at the Wellsville Water & Light plant, when the giant new turbo-generator, now being installed, will start action. The machine will have a capacity of 1,500 k. w. and will be capable of 1,800 horse power. The generator section has already been moved from the plant of the Moore Steam Turbine Company here where it was built to the electric station. This unit weighed about 15 tons. The rest of the machine will be delivered within a day or two, Superintendent E. J. Rowe announced. After the turbo-generator is hooked up the local plant will no longer need auxiliary current from the Niagara, Lockport & Ontario Company as is now the case. A considerable saving is anticipated since under present conditions it is cheaper to manufacture the "juice" than to purchase it.

The local plant has always been a source of pride to Wellsville citizens and the new addition will make it one of the most completely equipped power stations in the state.

Boys Entertain

Open house at scout headquarters in the City Hall attracted a large number of visitors Saturday afternoon and evening. The event marked the opening of the Scout headquarters after its recent redecoration by workers from the unemployment relief organization.
