South Hill

(Mrs. Margaret Dean, Reporter)

Oct. 12.—Dame Nature is most colorfully dressed, our woods being beautiful in the blending of autumn colors.

Our present cold snap must be the remains of the bad Western storms.

Andover's potato buyers opened the market Saturday at the "give away" price of 20 cents, and many were disposed of from this locality.

An agent for the farm paper "The Agriculturalist," visited the hill one day last week.

Two state troopers were on the hill recently. Is history of last year repeating itself?

Wellsville parties are digging potatoes for Tony Dougherty, motoring each day from the city. Ed. Lynch's crop is being rapidly dug by a large force of diggers.

A number of our residents were Sunday visitors in Wellsville, many taking in the Genesee-Andover ball game.

Vet. Regan of Wellsville was testing dairy herds on the hill Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Earley were business visitors in this vicinity Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Schoonover were guests of out-of-town relatives over Sunday.

collided with a truck driven by a Wellsville man at the intersection of the Genesee road. No one was injured.

The condition of Milford Matteson, who was terribly burned in the recent Sinclair Refinery blast at Wellsville is reported very unfavorable.

A Rally Day program was a feature of the morning service at the M. E. church last Sunday. There were several musical numbers, followed by a pageant very appropriate to the work of the Sunday School.

A serious automobile accident occurred last Sunday morning on the Rexville road, just above the John Wood home. Mr. and Mrs. Adelbert Potter and five young children of Troupsburg, were on their way to Oramel when, at the intersection of the Andover road, a car driven by Vivian Matteson of Andover crashed into their car. Mr. Potter sustained a serious injury to his neck. Mrs. Potter's right arm was broken and the children had minor cuts and injuries. Mr. and Mrs. Potter were taken to St. James Mercy hospital in Hornell after first aid treatment here by Mrs. Taylor, the doctor was away.

Dr. F. E. McCarty of Wellsville was here Monday night to see Dr. Probasco professionally, who is in very poor health.

Elm Valley

(Mrs. Charley Cole, Reporter)

The Elm Valley Community Club will meet with Mrs. May Cole Thursday of next week, Oct. 20th, for dinner. Please bring scissors, needle and thread. A cordial invitation is extended to all. Please note change of date.

Mr. and Mrs. Menzo Burdick were in Rochester early in the week.

Mrs. Irene Irwin, Mrs. Maud Duell and Mrs. Lizzie Scott and daughters of Canadea passed Wednesday with Mr. and Mrs. Charley Cole.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Poor have moved from the Borden milk station to her brother's farm, near Belfast.

Mr. and Mrs. Abram Slocum have issued invitations to the marriage of their daughter, Rachael, to LeRoy Burdick on Wednesday evening Oct. 26th.

Messrs. Charles and John Cochran were called to Darien, Green county, last Friday, by the death of their mother, Mrs. Rebecca Cochran. The burial took place in Rochester.

Columbus Day will be celebrated by Andover Union School and Academy in a manner befitting the occasion.

Fred Smith of Bainbridge, brother of Mr. E. G. Smith is in Andover assisting in the work at the bakery. He may remain here for the present.

Mrs. Lewis Corwin's new house on Second street is rapidly approaching completion, and will be a handsome residence. E. L. Hann is the builder.

Mrs. Sophia Burrows is very ill at her home in this place.

The most valuable cow known in Lanphar Valley for years, the property of P. Mulcahy, was killed on the tracks a short distance below the tool house at Tip Top summit last Saturday night.

The Allegany County Publishers' Association met at Friendship last Friday. The next meeting will be held in Andover, Nov. 18th. Election will be over then, and the editors whose side was defeated is expected to tell the others how it happened.

Marsh Bundy and family have been in Hornellsville the greater part of this week. "Marsh" seems to be enjoying himself, is improving in health and is happy.

Pardon Brothers, shippers of live stock and produce here, formed a partnership with P. C. Lynch, who has also engaged in the same business. The new firm will be known as Fardon Bros. & Lynch.

Rude Rural Rhymes

Wastes

I like to eat, I like things sweet, and sour and fresh and salty, my trencher work three times a day is anything but faulty. Right early broke to knife and fork, I use them with precision, but when I start to put on flesh I'm wasting good provision. Then all that flesh to carry 'round a waste of power, I wis, but many other things are more improvident than this. Life is a fight, all our resource is needed for its winning; to turn our weapons on our friends is foolishness and sinning. We all have faults that ought to shock and move us to contrition; to criticize the other cuss is wasting ammunition. Our families are little forts where shoulder unto shoulder, we turn our bold front to the world, the younger with the older. With sickness, poverty and grief at work for our demerit, to fuss with family or friends is wasting ammunition. —BOB ADAMS.

Mosher & Backus, Owners

A special meeting of the Business Men's Association was held last Monday evening in the council chambers of the city hall. Two propositions from manufacturing enterprises were presented. And the members present were favorably impressed. The business men of the village are showing an open-handed wide-awake policy and things look bright for the future.

Edward Seaman Post, G. A. R., and ladies of the Relief Corps, are to be entertained by the ladies of the Relief Corps of Whitesville Saturday evening.

The many friends of Prof. and Mrs. A. O. Tucker of North Cohocton, will be glad to know that a little son has come to their home to gladden their lives.

A farm house belonging to Dr. John Common's father at Angelica burned to the ground Monday morning. The house cost $4,500.

Elmer J. Brown has sold his farm in Independence and removed to this village, where he will for a time assist his brother, George E. Brown in his grist mill.

Tracy & Co. are about to drill a new well for gas west of this village on the Stearns farm. The rig is already completed and the drill will be heard pounding soon.

Atwood and McEwen completed a fine well, probably the best one drilled in the Andover field yet, last week, on the P. D. Lynch farm on South Hill, town of Andover. It started off at a 35 barrel trot and will settle for a five to eight barrel well.

At a meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the M. E. church, October 8th, the following officers were elected: President, Mrs. D. J. Comstock; first vice president, Mrs. R. A. Pease; second vice president, Mrs. F. M. Lanphar; secretary, Mrs. John Common; collectors, Mrs. Carrie Hunt and Mrs. Franc Burrows.

Mike Flynn, Frank Quigg and Roy Brundage left Andover Monday for Horseheads, where they are employed by Dr. N. P. Brainard, who has a contract for drilling a well east well in that vicinity.

George Barrett, who has been working on a farm at Decatur, Mich. the past seven months, came home Thursday night for a couple weeks' vacation.

Rev. H. D. Bacon and family arrived on Train 101, Tuesday evening. Mr. Bacon is the incoming pastor of the Presbyterian church of this village.

HOW, WHAT and WHY?

The Andover News has arranged with the Office of Information of the New York State Colleges of Agriculture and Home Economics to answer questions about problems of farm and home. If you enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope and mention the name of this paper, you will receive a direct reply to your query from the colleges. Do not ask more than one question in one letter or on one post card. Ask as many questions as you like, but make each one a separate communication.

To Cure the Bacon

H. H. V. asks: "Can you give me a recipe for the brine to use in curing bacon?"

Professor R. B. Hinman gives the following mixture: For 100 pounds of meat use ten pounds of salt, two and one-half pounds of brown sugar, and two ounces of powdered saltpeter. Mix these ingredients thoroughly and add four gallons of boiling water, then allow it to cool. Have the meat in a large crock or hardwood tub. A 20-gallon crock is commonly used. Pour the brine over the meat, and, if more water is needed to cover the meat, add the water, but mix it thoroughly with the brine. No one has found a better way to keep the meat in the brine than to put a hardwood board on top of the meat and weight the board with a large stone. The meat should be left in the brine two days for each pound of meat if the meat is to be used in the winter and three days for each pound if the meat is to be kept for summer use.

If the brine should start to ferment or sour, draw it off and boil it. Dilute it then with one-third more water. Then after the meat is rinsed and put back in the jar, the cooled and diluted brine may be returned to the jar.

Mrs. I. S. asks: "How are clams steamed or baked?"

Clams are known as soft-shell clams and hard-shell clams, or squabs. Clams are sold in the shell by quarts, pecks and dozen, and out of the shell, by the quart and in cans. Small, young squabs are called Little Necks, and are eaten raw.

Clams for steaming should be bought in the shell and should be alive. Wash them thoroughly, scrub with a brush, and change the water several times in the cleaning. If the clam is held tail uppermost under a running stream of water, the sand can be washed out. Put the clams in a large kettle, allow one-half cup of water to four quarts of clams; cover closely and steam until the shells are partially open. Serve with individual dishes of melted butter. Some persons prefer a few drops of lemon juice or vinegar added to the butter.

Roasted clams are served at clam bakes. Wash the clams. Burn wood on stones, remove the ashes, sprinkle the stones with a layer of seaweed or a piece of old wet gunny-sack or canvas to retain the steam.

What Young Apple Trees Need
K. V. B. asks: "My three-year-old apple trees do not grow evenly. I have but a few trees but want to give them the right sort of care. Do you have a bulletin on the subject?"

J. T. Bregger says a balanced growth is necessary for both the tree and the fruit crop. Some fast-growing trees rarely fruit at all and some trees reach a non-growing stage and tend to over-bear before
