Food Market Advice

The jig-saw puzzle of putting foods together to fit a budget is again pretty well scrambled. The most helpful pieces this week will be new potatoes, new cabbage, green beans, spinach, rhubarb, pineapple, fish and butter.

With few exceptions vegetables are most attractively priced. Even the onion, which has been high-hating its admirers for several weeks is somewhat more agreeably priced. Beets have come all the way down to their usual low level, new potatoes cost only about one-third their recent price, new cabbage prices are halved, spinach is way down, green beans also, carrots are cheap, cucumbers and eggplant lower, and green peas moderate.

Asparagus is somewhat higher but still moderate. Boston lettuce is plentiful and considerably cheaper than Iceberg. Tomatoes are higher because of damaging rains in Florida but the new Texas crop is due next week. Lettuce, scallions, watercress, radishes and celery make for inexpensive relishes and salads.

Lamb, altho considerably higher, is still a comparatively good value. Veal is better but it is not a really popular meat in this locality. Beef and pork, both fresh and smoked, are higher. Poultry is moderately priced. New crop duckling is an excellent value. Butter Production Up

The new crop of spring butter has begun to arrive, promising a sufficient supply to meet the increased demand at its present comparatively low price.

Egg prices show a steady slight upward tendency. At these levels and even higher ones, eggs, however, are a valuable addition to the diet. Cheese continues to be a first class bargain at its regular price.

Pineapples Chief Fruit Bargain Fresh pineapple is the outstanding fruit value in market. The strawberry crop of Louisiana and North Carolina is ending and the Virginia fields are not yet in full production so that strawberries are none too plentiful. Bananas, oranges and grapefruit are plentiful and moderate in price. Cantaloupes are not yet plentiful.

Here is a menu made up from seasonable foods which are moderate in price: Clear Soup Salmi of Duck New Baked Potatoes Green Beans Mixed Green Salad Rolls and Butter Fresh Pineapple Cup Cakes Coffee
