ACROSS THE PRINCIPAL'S DESK

During the past few weeks I have been giving consideration to the question of a suitable athletic program for the fall months, particularly with reference to the place that football might find in the program, and after summing up the evidence, I am quite convinced that our program should not include football. The principal difficulty is that our high school enrollment is not sufficient to insure a squad of 20 well developed, experienced players. Only occasionally will we find a year that a group of mature, seasoned players would be available. Such a circumstance did occur in 1933, but our experience last fall proved that the circumstance is the exception rather than the rule.

Football at best is a dangerous sport and for a physical education program that is designed to promote health, we cannot justify putting light, immature freshman and sophomore boys in football against such opponents as Dansville, Wellsville and the other large schools can produce. And yet to complete a football schedule we must play such schools as these, for none of the smaller school play football. Canisota and Cuba are the only ones whose near or size that still maintain the sport.

Football is an expensive sport, both in equipment and transportation. Even home games do not break even, for a guarantee of $15 must be paid the visiting team and the officials cost at least $6. With the scarcity of nearby schools that play football, the team would be forced to travel from 30 to 50 miles for out of town games and bus transportation for these distances would far exceed the $15 guarantee received.

Dr. Bauer of the State Physical Education Division during his visit here last spring, definitely registered his disapproval of our playing football. He said that no school of the size of Andover should even think of having regular football as a sport. He recommended as a substitute touch football or soccer.

Soccer has already become quite popular in Allegany county among the smaller schools. About six or seven schools played it last fall and it is organized on a county league basis with a definite schedule and a chance for each school to win the county championship. I believe that after a year's experience with this sport, the boys would find participation in this league highly desirable. I am recommending that Andover try soccer next fall as a substitute for football.

Popularity of salads in England has caused expansion in watercress farming, which is now a leading all-year crop.

Dogwood timber is used for shuttles wherever cotton, wool or silk is manufactured and is also used in making spools, brush backs and wood pulleys.

Around Our House

DUSTLESS DUSTERS

If you live on a road that is dusty in the summer, or, if in the winter ashes have a way of escaping up from the cellar to settle on the piano and on table tops, try a dustless duster, urges the New York state college of home economics. You can make it yourself.

This duster, excellent for daily use, can be made at home in the following way:

Pour into a pint or quart glass jar two tablespoons of furniture polish or liquid wax and swirl it around until the entire inside of the jar has been coated. Then pour out all of the mixture. Place in the jar a piece of old soft silk or chamois about a foot and one-half square, and allow it to stand for a day or two. The cloth will absorb the polish evenly.

When the dustcloth becomes soiled, wash it and repeat the process. Do not allow the cloth to touch wallpaper as it will leave a soiled spot.

not to look this way. I suppose they've made it up, and everything is all rosy again."

"I think so," Barry was curt about it. He could not discuss the Gage's affairs with Jim Kennedy. Barry wondered what Gage really thought of Paula. Gage was no dotting fool, but he loved his wife.

Barry thanked God for Nancy and swung off for a walk.

They were back at the Perch again—Anne snuggled contentedly in a big chair in front of a whispering fire.

Publicity had swept over them like a wave and had gone, leaving them breathless but safe. There might have been privacy for some, but not for Nancy Curtis, who had glittered for a brief time and whose brother-in-law was a multi-millionaire.

Anne gave the whispering fire a little secret smile. Barry had been sweet about it.

Now the tumult had died, and life was their own again. Letters and telegrams had been pouring in and lay in drifts on the table and in her lap.

And finally there was a letter from Mrs. Duane. It was addressed to Barry and it was restrained and frugal of emotion, but Anne knew how difficult those few careful sentences had been. "I'll do my share."

Anne thought, and felt a twinge of pity. "She is Barry's mother. I'll do all that she will let me."

Aloud she said: "It was nice of your mother to release you from your promise about living in Grandleigh. I know it is hard for her. But she'll be terribly proud of you. If you can get away perhaps we could go back for a little while, maybe at Thanksgiving or Christmas—if she would like it."

"Why—that sounds good to me." His eyes warmed. "With the salary that I'm to draw as president of the new company, we can make it a real party."

His eyes went back to some telegrams which lay open on the table. He knew them by heart. One was from this Mammoth Pictures Corporation whose hard-won contract Nancy had once had to let go. It offered a star contract now, with nearly twice the salary. The other was from Amalgamated, adding a bonus on every picture.

He fingered the yellow sheets and looked soberly across at her.

"You know," he said hurriedly, "it's all right, Nancy—if you want to. I mean I wouldn't stand in your way."

She knew how much that had cost him, how he hated the very thought of her living a life like that—and of losing her.

"Thanks for that, Barry. I've been thinking about it, of course. It seems as tho I'd never really finished anything that I began. I had a job in a little town, and then Paula went away and I gave it up to follow her and got another in a big town. And I let that go for my PRIMITIVE PEOPLE believed that animals could become men and men could become animals.

"DOCTOR" as a title was invented in the twelfth century. First there were Doctors of Law and Doctors of Divinity. William Gordon was the first person upon whom the title of Doctor of Medicine was bestowed. He received it from the College of Asti, in 1329. Today, in America alone, there are nearly 150,000 persons who have a right to sign themselves "M.D."—Doctors of Medicine.

THE HEART is a pump which works 24 hours a day. It forces blood under pressure to every part of the body thru channels resembling a closed water-works system, emptying back into the heart again. This pressure varies under different conditions in the same person. Blood pressure, continuously high, may indicate serious disease. Many people with high blood pressure have prolonged their lives under treatment which includes moderation in activity and the avoidance of stress, hurry and excitement.

first little part in a new play, and after two years I left the stage to go to Hollywood—and I ran away from that and bought a ranch. And then I tried being married for a while—just a very little while. If you don't mind, I think I'd like to stay around and make a good little play."

Something swooped Barry risked her up out of the big chair and the letters and telegrams swishing like rain.
