Hot Weather Dont's

DEOPLE have been "preached to" so much about summer habits of living, that some may have become calloused on the subject, but reminders may not now be amiss. Familiarity with hot weather "don'ts" of former years does not lessen the importance of repiition in the hope of saving someone from foolish acts. the constant endeavor to keep cool when keeping! cool is well nigh impossible.

There is little new information on the subject. Every adult should know that overindulgence in iced! drinks and heavy food is dangerous. Every grown person should be aware of the well established health rule that a light diet of fruit and green vegetables will assist nature in overcoming bodily discomforts traceable to high temperature and humidity.

Moderation in all things is necessary to retain good There is little that transpires in the world of af- health during the summer.
