BEING POLITE

Politeness is one of the most outstanding qualities a person can possess. It not only helps one to have more friends and be better liked, but also helps in making later life a success.

According to Webster, the word polite means well-bred, refined in manner, and courteous. With this in mind, just how many of us could say that we are polite?

Probably most of us think we are because we seldom see our own faults and if we do, instead of trying to correct them, we usually excuse them as being too slight to bother with. Other people, however, do not see us in this light.

When we meet a person, practically the first thing we notice about them is whether or not they are courteous. This is only natural, for who wants a friend a person of whom you would be ashamed because he does not know how to properly conduct himself?

Therefore, even if we do think we have the best of manners, let's look at ourselves from another person's point of view and find our real faults. And let's not only find them but after we find them try to correct them. The benefit to be derived from this self-analysis is worth the trouble as it will be a help fit not only to our present but to our future life.

COLLEGE DAYS

This statement may seem a bit untrue at this particular time, but nevertheless, it is true in many cases. The statement was recently made that "depression or no depression, college graduates were becoming a drug on the market. The professions are overcrowded, and many graduates will find it necessary to do other than that for which they had studied and prepared themselves."

This situation today is more intense than it was three years ago, as statistics prove. There are many seekers for fewer jobs, and the jobs pay less. It is true that the expectation of recovery has sent many young folks to college, with the idea that when they had graduated "things might be a little better off." Then, shall we say that the time has come to question the valuation of a college education? Not at all.

So we must at present think of college more in its non-money-making virtues. There is always the proof that college training prepares one for the larger chances and greater opportunities. Even if this education doesn't return every cent spent to it, but enlarges the social and inner life, doesn't it more than pay for itself? If it leads only to a finer appreciation of life, it need never be considered worthless. While in college, one makes the acquaintance of many companions, many new and vital things of life—things which once in one's heart cannot be taken from him. The right college life, therefore, piles up these riches for anyone who is willing to appreciate them.

Therefore, people, welcome home with glad hearts these boys and girls who seem to come home from college empty-handed. They have come home with complete and full ideas on life. Don't blame them because the world is all befuddled; don't expect them to right it immediately. College always pays—somewhere, somehow, sometime.

BOE ZECKELY COLUMN

Dear Boe Zeckely:
I am very much in love with a girl that will not answer any of my letters. I see her most every day, but I do not dare to ask her in person. Please advise me as to what I should do.

—P. L.

Dear P. L.:
This is the same question that has been asked me several times and my answer is always the same. Either get over your bashfulness so as to speak to her personally as they would like you better or forget about her entirely.

GRADE BRIEFS

This week Andover grade school boasts two new pupils, Marge and Dorothy Ellis who are in the seventh and fifth grades respectively. Both are from the Dean District.

The Third Grade has a milk unit illustrated by booklets and a milk chart showing the value of milk.

The Sixth Graders are studying Indians in History. The pupils of the grades are gathering an Indian collection.

Interest in the history of the cave man has been made now to the fourth grade pupils by the construction by the pupils of the cave man's habitat on a sand table.

Betty Greene in the eighth grade brought souvenirs to school Monday which her parents had secured on their recent trip to Alabama. During the day Betty showed them to the Eighth Grade. In the afternoon the Seventh and Sixth grades were guests of the Eighth grade to see the exhibit and to hear Betty tell about the trip. Things of interest shown included tobacco, cotton, sweet potatoes, velvet bean and peanut plants. She described Mammoth Cave and the Skyline Drive. One of the most interesting things displayed was a scrapbook of post cards and pictures taken on the trip. The exhibit was not only of interest but instructive.

!! The Spotlight !!

Here's your old pal back again after a busy week-end. My rays first land on Fanny T. and F. Pope, who seem to enjoy themselves immensely during the third period study hall, writing notes.

What's the matter with Charlotte and Padden? Not a busted romance I hope.

I see the boys are getting childish again—playing tag down town the other night.

C. Dolan is trying to high-hat the Sophomores now that she is a Junior. You can't do that and get away with it, Dolan. All men (and women) are created equal.

If it isn't Ida Mae it's Doris, huh, Elbert?

So Don L. is back to his old stand-by, Florence? We knew you would sooner or later Don. Good luck!

I guess you Andover boys haven't a chance with the Inanson sisters. Wellsville seems to be beating you out. Too bad.

So Charlotte C. and Billy W. went to the show the other night? It's nice Billy has a license now to drive, isn't it, Charlotte?

Well, I hear that Dorothy F. got gyped Sunday night. Too bad, Dorothy.

So the Sophomores are going to have a party? Well I can assure you a good time, but be careful, because I will be there to gather all dirt.

I hear that a certain "Freshie" is going around with one of our big "he-men." Who is she, "Tarzan"?

Well am I seeing things, or is it really true? None other than Thelma C. and Franklin W.—Nice going Frankie.

It is getting to be a habit with George J. Do you really like school that much, George?

I see that Dorothy N. is a very busy woman. How about it, Dorothy?

So Henry A. has caused a riot in the Sophomore room? Watch out, Anton, "blondes" are very deceiving at times.

Bruce McGill finally succeeded. He is president—of the Junior Class —Don't lose hope, Bruce, the United States will still be having Presidents when you are older. Keep up courage.

SEEN THINGS

I walked into the school, And ran you guess what I saw? I could see Mr. McGee With a swelled up jaw:

I turned to the left, And I heard someone say, "but I was our Tarzan, Don Elbert."

And on his head was a cut I asked him how he did it, He replied "With another high school imp."

I went into the Sophomore room, Where I saw Fannie; She seemed to be having a delightful time,

With our artist, Victor Yannie. Some one crept up to me, And told about Kenny Vars, That he and Dorothy Fosmer Were very much interested in cars.

But next time I'll have more to This is all I saw that day, say.

Two girls came out of the study hall Who were mumbling about the rains, And I was very quick to learn That it was Mary G. and Fotiney Karcanes.

Another girl was walking fast And making an awful fuss; I recognized her little form As Miss Laura Backus.

I heard about something else, That occurred on Greenwood Hill, It was about Rita D. learning to drive a car

That belonged to Bruce McGill. And they had had an accident With the driver, Eddie Kemp. Along came someone else, And I turned around to look, I saw Eddie Alderson coming up the stairs

With a girl named Charlotte Cook. I saw some other people talking In the middle of the hall, It was Dorothy Nobles and Ivar Lee Debating about softball.

TEACHER GOES TO DINNER PARTY!

Miss O'Connell was invited to a dinner party the other day. She jumped into her Jordan limousine and sped down the Schwarzenbach Highway, where her friends lived. Upon her arrival at the party everyone including the host rejoiced.

She was quite surprised to find that a former friend of hers whom she had sued for Bretsch of Promise was also a guest at this party.

The dinner, which was delicious, was served in the parlor. The guests concluded that the Baker was a genius at her work. Sitting on the davenport, Oax was served. All were entertained by the recitation of the poems of Dickinson.

After dinner, the group of guests sat around and talked. As the room became very McGee, Miss O'Connell decided to take a walk in the garden. Altho the Trankle of the mixer should have warned her, Miss O'Connell, due to darkness, fell in a Marsh. Thus the Baker found her some minutes later.

After such a shock, the host set coffee Perkin and suggested that she take a Knapp.

When she came to t-Ellis about the unexpected swim, all laughed because of DeWitt displayed in her narration.

FIRST ASSEMBLY HELD

The speaker for the first assembly of the new school year, which was held Friday morning, Sept. 19, was Mr. C. H. Watson, Andover's well known naturalist.

Principal Glenn Bretsch opened the assembly by leading the group in the salute to the United States flag. Introductions and a welcome were extended to the seventh grade and the new high school teachers.

The group then joined in singing "The Long Long Trail" led by Miss Marsh.

The following awards were presented for the best essays on the history of Allegany county: Elementary department, third prize, two dollars, Anna L. Hardy. Fourth prize, one dollar, Eleanor Northrup.

Junior High Department, third prize, two dollars, Betty Ann Green. Fourth prize, one dollar, Mary Teresa Burns.

Following the presentation of the awards Principal Bretsch introduced Mr. Watson, who, in order to demonstrate his lecture, brought with him a swarm of 50,000 bees. He proved to his audience that bees were harmless if treated properly, but there was some doubt in the mind of Principal Bretsch from the expression on his face, when he suddenly found himself possessed of 50,000 bees, with no chance for him to escape.

Mr. Watson pointed out that individuals must be ear and eye minded to profit from all that is beautiful in life. A hive of bees forms a pure democracy, each individual working for the good of all. Humans would do well to follow the example of the bees.

Interesting facts were divulged concerning the habits and development of the busy bee from the egg stage to the existence of the fully developed bee. The length of time for the latter depending on the bees "mission-to-be" in life, a queen, a drone, or a worker.

Mr. Watson's parting advice to the faculty members was to keep the students as busy as bees and thus keep them out of mischief.

The assembly program was brought to a close with the "Andover High School Song" accompanied by Miss Marsh at the piano.

FRESHMEN HOLD WEINER ROAST

The "Freshies" hiked to Indian Creek Monday night, Sept. 23 and held a weiner roast.

After devouring a meal of weiners, marshmallows and apples, it was discovered that Louis Fulkerson was suffering because of the disappearance of a little of nine puppies. There were no great tragedies except the unsuccessful hunt of two people for dogs, and the crushing of several members of the marshmallows family in Catherine Lynch's dark pocket.

Principal and Mrs. Bretsch, Miss M. L. Day, Mr. L. E. Host, Mr. William McGee and all but a few of the members of the class were present.

SPORT BRIEFS

SOCCER

There has been soccer practice every night this week that the weather has permitted. The team may play two games with Whitesville in the future.

Coach McGee said that soccer was considered very good training for basketball. It is an active game with considerable running, and not as dangerous as football; it may lack the excitement and thrill of the latter.

It is believed that when the players have become better acquainted with the game they will enjoy soccer.

Speed Ball

During physical education period the boys have been trying to play a fast new game called speed ball, which is a combination of soccer and touch football.

Softball

The girls have been going to the athletic field to play softball during physical education period. They will continue this outdoor program as long as the weather permits.

LITERARY CLUB VISITS NEWS OFFICE

Editor Claire C. Backus was a pleasing and instructive host to the members of the Literary Club Wednesday afternoon, Sept. 25, in the home of the Andover News.

Mr. Backus explained the setting up of type by the linotype, making "galley-proofs," locking of the type in the "frames," the operation of the printing press and paper folder.

This trip to the newspaper office was for the purpose of correlating the practical and theoretical in news writing, as the club has been studying news writing this week.

ENTERTAINED AT WEINER ROAST

The faculty and members of the Board of Education, their husbands and wives, were entertained at a corn and weiner roast in the lovely garden of Mr. and Mrs. Orson Robinson, Tuesday evening, Sept. 17th. About 29 were present. Mrs. Robinson was assisted by Mrs. Raymond Snyder, president of the Board.

After eating, dancing and games were enjoyed.

GUESS WHO?

This "Freshie" is of medium height, very light brown hair, is courteous and friendly at times, and wears spectacles which I suppose help her to study the pile of books she has always with her. Studious!!!! She also says she does not like the boys, but!!!!

Answer to last week's Guess Who—Virginia Smith.

HUMOR

Humor, like history, repeats itself —If you don't believe it, look us over.

Miss O'Connell: "What is the difference between you and Vesuvius?" James Lynch: "Vesuvius erupts, and I corrupt."

Mr. Joyce: "When are you going to stop driving from the back seat?" Mrs. Joyce: "When you stop cooking from the dining room table."

Joe McAndrew: "Do you know the height of ignorance?" Phil Lynch: "No, how tall are you?"

Mr. Host: "Wake up that boy back of you." Ken Vars: "Wake him up yourself; you put him to sleep."

Virginia Smith: "I went to the dentist yesterday." Veronica: "Does the tooth still ache?" Virginia: "I don't know; he kept it."

Mrs. Van Oxx: "Why were you late this morning?" Roberta: "There were eight of us—and the alarm was only set for seven."

Watch Your Kidneys!

Be Sure They Properly Cleanse the Blood

YOUR kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. If they become clogged, the waste matter will not be removed, and the system will be poisoned. This is the cause of many ailments, such as rheumatism, backache, headache, dizziness, and all the ailments that result from a clogged system.

Don't delay! Use Doan's Pills. They are especially for poorly functioning kidneys. They are recommended by all the best doctors in the country.
