It is next to impossible to expect people not to keep poisons around the house, but the proper precautions should be taken to prevent useless loss of life. No bottle containing poison should be kept in a medicine chest, even tho it is properly labeled, because levery time you place a bottle of poison in a medicine chest, you are flirting with death. The only sure protection against error is to keep all bottles or boxes filled wih poison, securely tied up in a box with heavy string.
