EDITORIAL CHRISTMAS SPIRIT

Joyous Christmas is nearly here and I can see children doing small jobs and asking for more work to do. This will make their parents feel that their children ought to be awarded. So the parents buy Christmas presents for the children. How happy they are when the peek thru the door at the tree laden with packages of all sizes, shapes and colors. They can hardly wait to open their packages and by the time this is done the house is all topsyturvy. Then mother has to clean it all thru by herself for the children have forgotten that there is work to be done. They have to show their friends what they received for Christmas.

Wouldn't mother and father be surprised if they were to see their children put their playthings away in an orderly fashion and still do the little tasks that would help mother so much?

Older school children could set better examples for their smaller brothers and sisters if they would take care of their things the way they should, and show the younger children how and where they should put their things.

The spirit of helping others should be in the minds of everyone all during the year. By doing this one will have a feeling that one has done his part and has made tasks easier for those who have worked hard all of their lives.

Now is the time to begin to make others happy and I hope that you will keep it up all year. At least, make less work for your parents to do, for they have made it possible for you to enjoy life, get an education and have many other comforts.

FACULTY ENJOY CHRISTMAS PARTY

The members of the Andover High School faculty, with their husbands and wives, enjoyed a Christmas dinner party Monday evening, Dec. 17th, held at Ye Olde Tavern in Wellsville.

After the dinner a short program under the capable leadership of Laurence E. Host as toastmaster, was presented. A reading, Dickens "Christmas Carol," by Miss Mary L. Day; a vocal solo by Miss Leona Marsh and a humorous talk by Principal Glenn E. Bretsch were given.

The group then adjourned to the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Schwarzenbach where games, refreshments and an exchange of Christmas gifts were enjoyed. The faculty group organized several weeks ago, and elected Mr. Host president. The group plans to have four get-togethers each year.

GENE GORDON WAVES MAGIC WAND

The world's most famous magician Gene Gordon, held the crowd in an uproar as he waved his magic wand around in the high school gymnasium last Friday, Dec. 13th in a performance sponsored by the Senior Class.

Gene Gordon was especially clever with cards. He made cards appear from such places as a person's mouth or neck. Another thing that held the crowd in an uproar was the cutting off of Craig Snyder's head in the guillotine. Although sad, the audience seemed to think it was very humorous (except Craig). As a ventriloquist, Mr. Gordon also was very clever.

The seniors made $6.41 profit on the performance.

REPORT CARDS OUT AGAIN

The report cards were distributed again on Wednesday, Dec. 18th, at noon for parents' examination and signature. This was the third marking period of the year.

BOE ZECKELY COLUMN

Dear Boe:

I am writing to you to secure some advice. I am in love with a gallant young gentleman, and yet when I see Bruce McGill, I get so flattered! Dear Boe, you don't realize my feelings. What shall I do? And yet, there are so many young fellows in high school that ask me for dates that I don't know what to do.

A neighbor of advice.

—Miss Katherine B.

Dear Miss K. B.: Now, now; don't get flattered when you see Bruce McGill. You had better leave him to the Wellsville "fems," or else ! ! ! Stay a sweet as you are with the gallant young man. Your advisor,

BOE ZECKELY.

A VERY MERRY CHRISTMAS

ANDOVER HIGH SCHOOL LOSES TO ANGELICA

The Andover High School basketball team lost their first game this season to a fast Angelica team, Tuesday evening by a 28-25 score. The game was fast and even all the way thru, but the frequent fumbling and missed baskets of the Andover team finally lost them the game. The Andover passwork was a little better than that of the visitors, but Angelica was much surer of their shots.

Harding and Greber tossed in most of the Angelica points, while Young turned in a good floor game. Fulkerson was the most outstanding player on the court and was practically the only Andover player to turn in a good game.

Summary for the Andover-Angelica game:

McGill, f	1	0	2
Fulkerson, f	7	3	17
Cannon, c	1	0	2
Lynch, c	0	0	0
Alderson, g	0	1	1

GRADE BRIEFS

The most important item this week is about the various Christmas parties which are being held this Friday afternoon in the respective rooms.

The girls of the first grade have had perfect attendance for five weeks in succession.

The third grade won the music contest which has been going on among the first six grades.

Rita Nottingham's side will treat Mary Elaine Baker's side next Friday afternoon in a part of the Christmas party, as a result of the geography contest which they have recently ended.

The Seventh Graders are sorry to lose Vera Milligan, who has moved to Belmont.

The losing side in the Seventh Grade mathematics contest treated the winners to a party Friday afternoon. Games were played and a treat enjoyed.

SENIORS TO HAVE FIRST DANCE

The Senior Class of the Andover High School is having its first dance of the year Friday evening, Dec. 20. Dancing will start at 9 o'clock and continue until 1, to the music of the Knights of Rhythm. This dance is an invitation affair, to which only couples are admitted. The admission is 50 cents a couple.

The students and faculty are cordially invited to attend this dance.

ANDOVER BEATS BELMONT 30 to 14

Andover High School won its second league game of the season at Belmont, making a score of 30 to Belmont's 14. Andover took the lead in the first minutes of play and held it thruout the game. The passwork and ball handling of the Andover team showed much improvement over previous games.

During the first half, there were many fouls made by both teams. Andover's defense worked well, holding Belmont to two field goals during the first half and two in the last half.

In the second half, Andover clicked much better than in the first half, with their defense and offense working perfectly. Fulkerson was the outstanding player for Andover both in defense and offense, as was George for Belmont.

The summary of the Andover-Belmont game is as follows:

Briggs, f	2	1	5
Fulkerson, f	6	3	15
McGill, f	2	3	7
Burdick, f	0	0	0

CANTATA WILL BE HELD TONIGHT

This is just another reminder to the music loving friends of Andover of the cantata, "Chimes of the Holy Night," which is to be given this (Thursday) evening at 8:15 in the high school auditorium. This cantata is being presented by the Girls' Glee Club, under the direction of Miss Leona Marsh.

There will be no admission charge. There will be, however, a silver offering to help meet expenses. All are invited to come.

!! The Spotlight !!

Well, well! Yes, it's the Spotlight again, and his famous salutations and greetings to everyone.

Just a timely warning—I expect to be at the cantata Thursday night and I'm going to take special note of the couples who leave. Get me? I know that most of youse gals have a friend coming to see you perform, so—I'm just warning you—you will be spotted!

Why does Kruger act queerly when the practice teacher passes by? It must be those "dreamy" eyes.

Oh, listen to this: Jean Ann O. is leaving Andover after this week! Feature that! Can't be she likes our A. H. S. "gang" or maybe she's homesick for some of that ol' gang o' mine. Whichever it is, we hope that she liked her visit in Andover. "Ozzie," and you are invited to come again sometime to "busy" (?) Andover.

My Spotlight revealed none other than Thelma Callaghan and Harold Perry out walking the other evening. Thelma, doesn't it ever occur to you that "Tish" might become a trifle jealous? Beware of the "green-eyed monster."

Oh, yes. Ask Fernie why she couldn't practice at the M. E. church Wednesday night. What—another date? Tsk! Tsk! It wasn't Fannie's brother again, was it—Fess up, now.

Another reminder—I must see all of you at the Senior dance, this Friday night—and again I warn you—Beware of the Spotlight rays continually focusing in every direction, searching, searching, everywhere.

Isn't it queer why these A. H. S. boys can't go to the theatre for a change and sit quietly? No noise or yelling?

Well, one of the rays of my Spotlight accidentally went rambling at random Monday night, Dec. 16, 1935. It discovered this scene: Beatrice Kruger on one side of the theatre and "Jimnie" Cannon on the other side! This is really too bad! I wonder if they didn't know that the other was going?

Ruth is wearing Hornell's insignia but Allentown is, we think, going to take Hornell's place eventually. "Double trouble," eh, Ruthie?

Milton Briggs, aren't you ever going to go back to C. Dolan again? We've waited a long time, but it hasn't happened! You two took so nice together, "Milk." Think it over—please!

Did Eddie A. have a date with Charlotte C. Monday night or what? He should be able to tell you.

We haven't heard so much about R. Cline lately, Regins—Isn't he preopin' any more?

Well, here's to signing off—and the hopes that Santa will be kind and bring me a new "Spotlight"—this one has served its purpose well. See you at the dance.

A-H-S—GUESS WHO?

This girl is a Freshman. She is of medium height, has light hair and always dresses nicely. She goes out for girls basketball and has recently shown much interest in boys. They tell me her popularity has increased within the last few weeks with a tall, dark and handsome junior. I think this is all the information needed for you to guess who it is.

Answer to last week's Guess Who—Ivar Lee Rogers.

SANTA CLAUS Dorothy Schoonover—7th Grade

It's almost time for Santa Claus Who comes every year, They say he's round and jolly, And full of good cheer, He comes to leave us presents 'Til he comes another year. It's nice to receive presents, And nicer yet to give, That's the way God means for us All little children to live. The spirit of good Christmas It's just as you make it, Wherever you chance to be, It's the love that goes with it, Not the gift that is received.

CHRISTMAS JOYS Carol Walton—8th Grade English It was Christmas Eve. Ned, Dot and Little Nell had hung up their stockings and had gone to the far-away dreamland. But the question was, who was going to fill their stockings, their mother lay sick in the hospital with fever, and their father was dead. It would be a shame to disappoint these children whose faith was so strong in dear old Saint Nick. We will leave these three kiddies with their dreams of goodies and toys and go to another home much different:

Here we find instead of an ever-green tree or stockings, a beautiful lady dressing for a party. Her heart did not seem interested in the beauty around her. Today was the anniversary of that dreadful Christmas when their only child, Betty Louise was taken. At the time she had said, "Maybe they needed another blue-eyed angel in Heaven when they took our baby." Nothing was left now but memory. She put the last finishing touches on her attire and rose with a sigh and hurried to meet her waiting husband.

As they drove along her husband broke the long silence by saying: "I have been thinking of something I (Continued on Page Nine)
