A CHRISTMAS MESS

I stole around quietly, The clock just struck eleven; I knew I shouldn't be up then, 'Cause I'd always got up at seven. Something moved beside the tree, It probably was Santa Claus, turned and scampered back to bed Without another pause. I couldn't go to sleep of course, My eyes just wouldn't close. I could picture dear old Santa With a very cold, red nose. I pictured many pictures And I had a little fear

That if I wasn't very good Santa wouldn't come this year. Over I turned and went to sleep, Now it was one o'clock, I wondered if San:a had yet come And filled to the top my sock. At seven-thirty I aroused To see what I could see, Every room I went straight thru To reach the Christmas tree. Of course it seemed a mystery

When I unwrapped a gun; Mayhap that Santa made this error Just to have a little fun. A very colorful top --I was getting most discouraged, And thought Christmas was a flop. Still I unwrapped another And out rolled a toy,
