Pedestrians Should Watch

DEDESTRIANS have an equal responsibility in crossing streets, with those of motorists, as many persons take too much for granted as they dart across a street, trusting to the oncoming car to be carefully driven and that the driver will be on the alert to miss anyone who happens to get in front of his car. Many motorists operate their cars in a manner grossly lacking in courtesy and rational caution, and for that reason, if for no other, those who walk should not leave too much for the other fellow. They often cross streets in a comfortable easy-going way, expecting the motorist to look out for them.

Many times a person walking does not consider! all of the things that a driver has to keep in mind. there are traffic signals, the driver must watch them and he presumes also that the pedestrian watching and will not disregard them.
