GENIUS IN EMBRYO

SENIOR CLASS OF '37

As the time silently slips away
And the years come and pass
No record shall be better
Than this year's Senior Class

There always will be Seniors
To fill our vacant place,
But could any of our successors
Set a better pace?

We have led them climbing up and
In the years that have gone past
How the victory is ours
We have reached the top at last

Soon it will be over
And the last class bells will ring,
The world then is ours,
For we'll be starting in again.
—Edward Mullen, '37

THE MATHEMATICIAN

I have measured
The hypotenuse of a tear—
I have taken
The mean proportion between Love
and Hate;
I know how to find
The square root of Fear,
Perhaps—I can fantom Fate.
—Mary Sylvester Cline

LITTLE BITS OF HUMOR

Bolder: "They tell me your wife has a lot of will power."
Meeker: "Yes; but that's nothing compared to her won't power."

Tommy: "I wonder why fat men are always so jolly and good natured?"
Billy: "That's easy. They can't run and they can't fight."

Peaky Things
Mrs. Dasher: "When we were in Egypt we visited the pyramids. Some of the stones were literally covered with hieroglyphics."
Mrs. Gush: "I hope none of them got on you. They say some of those foreign insects are terrible."

Not Like Dad
Mother: "No, Jimmie, for the third time I tell you that you cannot have any more dessert."
Jimmie: "All right; but I don't see where dad gets the idea that you're always changing your mind."

Beat He Could Do
Young Angus had been out for the evening with his best girl. When he arrived home he found his father still sitting up.
"Hae ye been ott wi' yon lassie again?" he asked.
"Aye, dad," replied young Angus.
"Why do ye look so worried?"
"I was just wondering how much the evenin' cost."
"No more than half a croon, dad."
"Aye. That was nae so much."
"It was a' she had," said Angus.
