Darwin's Early Life
Darwin's father was a physician and wished him to adopt that profession. At the age of 16 he entered the University of Edinburgh, but disliked medicine, and later entered Christ's college, Cambridge, to prepare for the ministry. There he became acquainted with Henslow, the professor of botany, who did much to shape his career. The proficiency that Darwin displayed in every department of natural science won him such distinction that he at last obtained his father's consent that he should enter the church.

Robert Adam Was Famous as a Furniture Designer

Among the most distinguished furniture designers during the latter part of the Eighteenth century was Robert Adam, favorite of George III, bachelor king of England. Son of an architect, he and his brother James gained fame as architects under the partnership legend of the "Adephi."

Adam traveled considerable when traveling was fraught with great dangers. Among his many extended trips was the one he undertook to the excavations of Pompeii and Herculaneum. In these ancient ruins he found many decorative and structural motifs which became part and parcel of his exquisite designs.

Most of Adam's furniture shows his architectural leanings. Some of the furniture Adam made was of mahogany with delicate carvings and dainty inlays. He originally introduced the shield back chair, but abandoned it in favor of the wheel-back chair.

During his activities in the building of homes for the wealthy and designing fixtures and furniture for the interiors Robert Adam found time to write and illustrate three volumes of his "Works in Architecture" which were dedicated to his patron, King George III. Adam's designs are frequently reproduced in dining-room furniture and occasional living-room pieces.

Young Giraffes Do Bawl Like the Hungry Calves

Most naturalists long have held that giraffes are voiceless animals, unable to make a sound when in agony. A challenge of this occurs in the report of the Kenya game warden, which avers that a young giraffe, separated from its mother, will bawl and low like a hungry calf, according to a writer in the Montreal Herald.

Whether mute or not, the giraffe is one of the world's most peculiar animals. It has at least two other claims to distinction. It is the world's tallest mammal and one of the most expensive animals found in menageries.

A giraffe's neck, long as it is, contains no more vertebrae than does the neck of a man. It is merely elongation of the vertebrae that elevates the giraffe's head among the treetops.

Possessing few means of defense, giraffes are protected by their coloration. Their irregularly marked coats blend so perfectly with the dappled sunlight and shadows of the trees on which they feed that at a distance they are difficult to detect. Thorny acacias do not prove a trial to them for the animals' tough hides protect them from long thorns, and their elastic tongues taper to pluck leaves without including the trees' piercing armor.

Use for Long Fingernails
Scores of Chinese at Soochow, China, make a living by growing eight-inch finger nails for a patent medicine manufacturer. The nails are ground into a powder which is the base of a medicine for sore throat. A Soochow finger-nail grower is paid enough to enable him to remain absolutely idle, as the nails must be perfect, and have no cracks or other blemishes. The medicine is prepared as a tiny black pill no larger than a pinhead, invented many years ago by a Soochow physician.

Chief Use of Nickel
Principal use of nickel is not in making five cent pieces, but in steel manufacture. Addition of nickel to steel makes it tougher, stronger and rust-resisting. "Stainless steel" is stainless because it contains about 10 per cent nickel. "German silver" is an alloy of nickel, copper and zinc; "white gold" an alloy of nickel and gold.

Oddly-Named Wild Posies

Hide in Field and Wood
Wake robin, skunk cabbage, lady's slipper, fringed gentian, harebell, buttercup, bouncing bet, Dutchman's breeches, shepherd's purse, Queen Anne's lace—some of the names of our Middle Western wild flowers are known to almost everyone. There are many others, however, with equally intriguing designations, which only a comparatively few persons know either as names or living things of the field and wood.

For instance, the sleepy catch fly, Adam and Eve, the flower of an hour and Indian's pipe, also called the ghost flower because all its parts are white, and there's the shooting star, butter and eggs, false mermaid, squirrel corn, lizard's tail, the green dragon, crane's bill, hound's tooth and toad flax; the hedge hyssop, virgin's bower, downy false foxglove and sandrop.

To the Fieldbook of Illinois Wild Flowers, published by the Illinois Natural History Survey, this report is credited.

The Hair Snake

The life history of the hair worm or hair snake is by no means completely known, but it is known that the eggs are laid in winter and that the young worms begin their lives as free-living animals which enter the bodies of aquatic insects, which in turn are eaten by fish. After a time they are passed out of the fishes' stomachs into the water. Little is known subsequent to this, until they are found as parasites inside insects of various kinds, such as grasshoppers, ground beetles, etc. — Montreal Herald.

Trinidad Cosmopolitan

Trinidad is by many recognized as the most cosmopolitan island in the New World. Here Chinese, Japanese, Hindus, blacks, whites, browns and yellows, people of every race and creed, progeny of the international trade that once swept through this country, mingle in fascinating markets and villages. Trinidad's natural wonders, too, are bizarre, including such sights as the famous Asphalt lake and Macarac water fall. The island's broken horizon of volcanic mountains and its gardens of tropical beauty contribute to its general completeness of the cruise.

Medicinal Plants

Senna, chamomile and buchu are medicinal plants, imported into this country. Senna consists of the dried leaves of species of cassia, grown in Egypt and India, and has purgative properties. Chamomile or camomile consists of the dried flowers of a herbaceous plant of temperate Europe. They have a strong aromatic odor and are used in the preparation of mild tonics, etc. Buchu consists of the dried leaves of the barosma, a small shrubby plant of South Africa, and is employed for its diuretic and other properties.

LITTLE BITS OF HUMOR

Mary: "Do you think Jimmy is sincere in his love?"
Frances: "I'm sure of it. No actor could have acted so foolish as he did when he proposed to me."

Explorer: "And it was so cold in the Antarctic that we did not dare to pet our dogs."
Miss Clinger: "Indeed! Why not?"
Explorer: "You see, their tails were frozen stiff and if they wagged them they would break off."

Jones: "My wife talks to me positively awful."
Smith: "That's nothing. Mine talks to me awfully positive."

Farmer Flintstone: "Couldn't you get any of them WPA fellers fer hired hands?"
Farmer Fumblegate: "Naw; and when they told me how much they made just leavin' on their shovels I got a job myself."

Killian: "You were no spring chicken when you married me."
Mrs. K.: "No; I suppose goose would be a better name for it."

Panhandler: "Lady, do you have a pipe organ I could tune for you?"
Lady of the House: "We do not have a pipe organ."
Panhandler: "Seeing as I haven't a chance to earn anything, how about giving me a bite to eat?"

Jim: "I see the fashion notes say the waistline is to be somewhat lower this year."
Ray: "If it gets much lower it is going to make it awkward for us fellows. We'll just have to quit trying to put an arm about our girls' waists."

Friend: "Did you get any replies to your advertisement that a lonely maiden sought light and warmth in her life?"
Spinster: "Yes, two from an electric company and one from the 'right people.'"

Sentinels of Health

Don't Neglect Them!
Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—constantly produces waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure. When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer from backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nightly, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—let these signs, if they occur, be further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance.

The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years' public approval. Any endorsed the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.
