Pyrex Cooking Utensils

Pyrex Brand Glass is so different from ordinary glass that basic world wide patents have been granted on its composition. It differs from other glasses chiefly in its great resistance to over heat and sudden temperature changes. Ordinary glass expands—greatly when heated. So much so, that when it is suddenly removed to a cooler atmosphere the shock of change or contraction is too great—so it breaks.

Pyrex glass expands so little under intense oven heat that the shock of a cooler atmosphere has less effect. Not having expanded much there is less contraction, less shock, therefore less danger of breakage.

This brand new line of cooking and baking Pyrex ware may be used for dining room service as well as oven and kitchen use. The sauce pans come in a variety of sizes, all equipped with heat-proof removable handle.

Pyrex brand dishes never wear out from service. They never show their age. They are always clean and wholesome, impervious to odors or contamination. Glass baking dishes save on fuel because glass does not reflect heat waves like ordinary utensils. Glass dishes use on the average, 50 degrees less oven heat than ordinary utensils—which naturally will also lower gas bills.

Come in, and see our new complete line of sparkling Pyrex Cooking and Baking Ware.
