CITATION FOR PROBATE OF WILL

THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK:

By the Grace of God Free and Independent

To Robert Searles, Will Searles, E. L. Searles, Charles E. Searles, Will Miller, R. R. Miller, Jennie Bowly, heirs at law and next of kin of Benjamin W. Conley, send GREETING:

Whereas, Hattie Conley, who resides at Andover, N. Y., has lately applied to the Surrogate's Court of our County of Allegany, to have a certain instrument in writing, relating to both real and personal property, duly proved as the last Will and Testament of Benjamin W. Conley, who was at the time of his death a resident of Andover, N. Y., deceased.

Therefore, you and each of you are cited to show cause before the Surrogate's Court of our County of Allegany, at the Surrogate's Office in the Village of Belmont, N. Y., on the 23rd day of July, 1937, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, why the said Will and Testament should not be admitted to probate as a will of real and personal property.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, we have caused the Seal of the Surrogate's Court of the said County of Allegany to be hereunto affixed.

WITNESS, HON. WARD M. HOPKINS, Surrogate of said County, at Belmont, N. Y., this 11th day of June, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-seven.

LEON A. ACKERMAN, Clerk of the Surrogate Court.

POISON IVY

In most rural communities the spiteful plant is common. It gets in its baneful work on tourists, vacationists, campers, as well as the native rural folk, and in the warm weather it is a very painful affliction. I have seen patients literally on fire, eyes swollen shut, high fever and sometimes delirium, and all from ivy poisoning. It is not to be accepted lightly. Severe cases call for skilled medical attention.

Look out for poison ivy with its lance-head leaves, three in a group, growing vigorously over blighted trunks of trees, upon old fences and in neglected places. It is easy to know and avoid, if one tries.

Vigorous scrubbing with plenty of soapy water will sometimes ward off or lessen an attack after one has come in contact with the plant. Bear in mind that this is an acid poison and it takes "alkalis" to neutralize acids.

My best success with ivy poisoning has been with equal parts of grain alcohol and lime-water. The alcohol, with its affinity for water, rapidly eases the inflamed skin, and the lime-water counteracts the acid. Apply by cloths soaked in the solution until the trouble is corrected. Calamine lotion, which can be prepared by your local druggist, is also successful in many cases.

Never treat poison ivy with ointments or "salves," they simply hold the poison in the tissues. Sugar of lead is sometimes used, but is dangerous because of lead poisoning. If you are extremely sensitive to ivy poisoning, consult your physician on the advisability of the immunizing serums or antigens.
