LITTLE BITS OF HUMOR

Englishman: "My great-grandfather was made an Earl by the King whose likeness you see on this coin." Yankee: "That's nothing. The Indian whose head you see on this one made an angel of my great-grandfather."

WPA Foreman: "What kind of work can you do?" Applicant: "Nothing." Foreman: "Good! Now I won't have to lose any time breaking you in."

Man at Phone: "Hello. Give me a box for four." Voice Back: "Very sorry, sir, but we have no boxes for four." Man: "Say, isn't this the Princess Theatre?"

Voice: "No, this is the Elite Funeral Parlors."

Baggsby: "Who do you consider the greatest man this nation ever produced?"

Crabshaw: "I used to think it was either Lincoln or Jefferson, but now I'm becoming convinced it was my wife's first husband."

Beggar: "Have you got enough money for a cup of coffee?" Tightwad: "Oh, I'll manage somehow."

Here lies the remains of a radio fan, Now mourned by his many relations.

He went to a powder mill, smoking his pipe, And was picked up by twenty-one stations.

building homes for birds.

Forty-eight different species of birds in the United States are known to have nested in homes built for them. Birds that frequently use nest boxes are bluebirds, wrens, tree swallows, starlings, and martins. Also included are chickadees, titmice, nuthatches, flickers and some other woodpeckers, screech owls, sparrow hawks, and wood ducks.

A well-built bird house is durable, rain-proof, cool and readily accessible for cleaning. Wood is the best building material and paint greatly increases the weathering qualities. Modest tones, as brown, gray, or dull green are generally preferred. In general, houses should be fairly low, should not be put up in dense woods, and should be on poles rather than trees. If possible they should be placed with the opening away from prevailing winds.

Suggestions for building nest-boxes are found in Farmers' Bulletin No. 1456, "Homes for Birds," which is for sale by the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D. C., price five cents.
