by law in establishing a central district?

A—The Commissioner of Education must issue an order laying out the central district.

Q—With whom must the Commissioner's order be filed?

A—With the clerk of the town or towns in which are located the districts to be included in the central district.

Q—What else must be done before a central district becomes established?

A—A meeting of the legal voters of the central district must be held and a vote taken.

Q—Who calls the meeting to vote on the proposition to establish a central district?

A—The town clerk with whom the Commissioner's order is filed.

Q—Must the town clerk call a meeting to vote on the proposition?

A—He must call a meeting if 15 taxable inhabitants of the proposed central district request him in writing to do so.

Q—How is a central district finally established?

A—By a majority vote of the legal voters of the proposed central district assembled at the meeting called by the town clerk.

Q—Is this method of voting fair to districts outside the village or union free school district?

A—Yes; a majority of the voters often live in the outside districts. In any case, a vote cannot be taken unless the central district is laid out by order of the Commissioner of Education and the Commissioner has ruled that he will not issue an order laying out a central district until he has evidence that a majority of the legal voters in the outside or common school districts are in favor of establishing a central district.

Q—How must this evidence that a majority in the common school districts favor establishing a central district be furnished to the Commissioner of Education?

A—By petitions signed by legal voters in the common school districts or by a record of duly called meetings at which a vote has been taken.

Q—Must there be a majority of the voters in each common school district in favor of forming a central district?

A—No; a majority of the legal voters in all the common school districts taken together must favor it.

Q—Why not a majority in each district?

A—Because one or two high valuation districts with extremely low tax rates could prevent the establishment of a central district which was favored by a majority of all the rural people affected.

Q—Are the petitions signed by legal voters or the meetings in common school districts required by law?

A—No; they are required by the rule of the Commissioner of Education as a means of determining the wishes of the voters concerned.

Q—Is there any precedent for the unit vote in establishing central school districts?

A—Yes, for more than 50 years union free school districts have been established by unit vote.

Q—What is the best way to find out about central rural schools and central school districts?

A—Make a visit to the Friendship Central School, which has been established the longest of any hereabouts, and ask the rural people who live there how they like it. Ask them if they would like to return to old conditions.

Farmers interested in dairy stable ventilation may write for Cornell bulletin E-151, which tells how to build the system. Single copies may be had free from the New York State College of Agriculture at Ithaca, New York.

A Busy Man Reports . . .

"THEY laughed at me for asking to answer the question: 'What do you think of the news in condensed and connected form?'"

"They laughed because they thought I couldn't express a sound opinion on a current subject. But as I started talking, they realized that I knew what I was talking about!"

"There was a time when I had to say when they asked me for my opinion: 'I don't know, I haven't had the time to read much more than the headlines.'"

"But that was before I discovered The United States News—and found how quick and easy it is to keep informed. As a reader of The United States News, I now speak with ASSURANCE on questions of national importance. My conversations are MORE INTERESTING, MORE CONVINCING than ever before."

"And the surprising part of it all is that I do less reading now than I used to do when I tried to get my information by piecing together unrelated news articles. The United States News gives you what you need these days: The week's news in CONDENSED and CONNECTED form."

Our staff of expert writers, reporters and research specialists adds the BACKGROUND and PERSPECTIVE for you. Our staff is large enough to read for you everything that needs to be read—to see everyone that needs to be seen—to dig out and summarize for you all the information that can be found."

Increasing thousands of busy, alert men and women are using this most practical and sensible means of being informed.
