Baker's Hardware News THE NEW COLEMAN OIL-BURNING HEATERS

For some two or three years, we have been investigating the market for Oil Burning Heaters—and after careful consideration of the various brands, we have chosen the New COLEMAN, which we think is superior in quality, design of appearance, service for clean low cost, and healthful heat.

COLEMAN OIL HEATERS are second to none in the beauty of their modern design and finish. They have smooth streamlines; all seams and joints are snugly fitted and smoothly finished; there are no exposed bolt heads; all the cabinet models have the new Duroplastic Enamel Finish in warm walnut brown, practically indestructible—will not crack, chip or peel.

In all circulating models the warm golden flame is visible thru the combustion chamber door which lends a fireplace friendliness and adds beauty to the heater and to the room.

Three Heat Reflector Doors are an exclusive feature of Coleman Super-Standard Oil Burning Heaters—and provide a two-way heating service. They are lined with a mirror-like aluminum surface. Heat waves reflect from this surface like light from a mirror. By opening and adjusting the doors, the heat waves are directed into a focused zone where extra heating comfort is desired.

Extra warmth can be concentrated into a zone where children are playing on the floor. By swinging the doors the comfort zone can be concentrated or expanded and heat focused wherever extra heat is desired. This focused heat is especially appreciated in the early morning when the house seems cool; in zero weather and when high winds or abnormal conditions tax the capacity of the heater; when someone comes in from the cold outdoors and wants to warm up quickly, or when bathing or dressing children.

When the Heat Reflector Doors are closed, the Coleman becomes a Circulating Heater, and an unusually large volume of freshly warmed air flows from the register in the top of the heater. As the air circulates, it gives up heat by contact with persons and objects. Because of the large volume of air circulating, stagnant stuffy air pockets are eliminated, the formation of dead air strata or layers is prevented and the air is kept alive, fresh, warm and healthful.

Coleman Heaters require no watching, no tending and when equipped with the Automatic Heat Control, the Coleman regulates itself to any change in temperature. Without this automatic feature, it requires the adjusting of only one valve, which takes but an instant.

Coleman Heaters provide low cost heat—use cheap furnace oil and because of high heating efficiency, they use less fuel.

Coleman manufacturers make models to supply every heating need for homes, stores, offices, shops, schools, churches, halls, etc. They can satisfy the demands of their customers for clean, modern, convenient low-cost heating service that provides extra comfort and better health at economy standards.

We urge you to come in and see the New COLEMAN OIL BURNING HEATERS—which provide more heat—extra comfort—better health at less cost!
