A total of $150,298 had been paid, up to November 1st, to 2,849 New York State farmers taking part in the 1937 Agricultural Conservation 'Program, according to G. B. Robinson, senior field officer. The checks average $52.75.

The present plan is to pay each farmer in two checks, he says. The first is 80 per cent of the payment as calculated from his application, based on 1937 practices carried out. Within a month or two, the second check will be issued, and from it will be deducted each farmer's share of expenses of the county agricultural conservation association.
