Holds Training School For Library Workers

The Home Bureau units of Allegany county are steadily gaining in membership with the resultant effect of more ably ministering to all the needs of its members and their communities. In a large way, this is due to the pleasing personality and able leadership of its county agent, Elda Jane Barker of Belmont.

Friday afternoon, Nov. 19, Miss Barker held a training school for librarian leaders of the different units in the Wellsville library. This was the first of the kind ever held in the county and went over big with the leaders.

Miss Lois Murchough told several children's stories, as she tells them to children who patronize the library. She advised as to what books to buy for children, stressing how to buy for children from two years on need their own books, books that will interpret life for them as they ought to know it; also that a purchaser should know the child for whom the book is bought as well as the book. Every book should be such as to lead the child on and not throw him back upon himself less strong than when he read it. Just as clothes do not make a person, so beautiful covers do not always bind beautiful books.

Mrs. LeFever bade us welcome in behalf of the Library Association, and in a very gracious manner made us feel that the library was ours to use for club meetings, for entertainment, for plays. The books could be borrowed in person, by telephone or postcard (postage one-half usual price). That any request for information would be promptly answered.

After a personally conducted tour the leaders were very proud that the building was theirs to use.

Every parent in Andover should feel rich indeed with our own beautiful library, so well equipped with delightful children's books, and with such an efficient librarian, Mrs. Edwin Baker, and in addition to feel that only nine miles away another library and librarian bids them welcome. Both librarians are eager and anxious to help you choose the best for your child.

The Cornell bulletin "Growing Up With Books," advises the following ideas: Every child is entitled to his own books, for the same reason he is entitled to his own food, clothing and bed. An acid test for every book (does it possess integrity when its content is matched with life's experiences and needs?). Until a child is six he is absolutely dependent upon adults for reading; his bath will probably not be neglected—but what about his books?

The Home Bureau library leader will be glad to lend the list of books furnished her to any one desiring it.

WASTINGS
"Wandering Willie"

THE local fire boys are all set to entertain the county officers of the county firemen's association at this week. They got all set for this "big wigs" last meeting night, but Karl Buehring of Wellsville, county secretary, must have had it in for the local bunch as he kept the meeting a secret and didn't tell the other fellows a thing about it. So, Karl, if the same thing happens again this meeting night, it would be advisable to join the Spanish army. We know you're due for a roasting anyhow.

IN ANSWER to our query as to what "Life Round About Us" meant in a recent article, the answer was that the writer of that department was not proud of the Buffalo traffic control, going on to state that we were looking for hidden meanings, etc. But not saying whether we were right or wrong. But according to a Buffalonian we cornered the other day, he said that some of the schools practiced the "patrol" system mentioned previously.

WE are not sure whether we would like to live in a college town or not. That depends, of course, if whether the rest of the residents of our neighboring town of Alfred care or do make as much noise as the Freshman boys. We know they can make themselves heard. But a few, 12 or 14, hit this burg the other evening and enjoyed themselves. Nothing serious, just noise, a little more noise, and then some more—noise. Some were fair singers and others well, that's where the noise came in.

Mrs. Kate Boshor
 Mrs. Marguerite Walton received word of the death of her aunt, Mrs. Maria Catherine Boshor of Muncie, Ind., Nov. 24th. Mrs. Boshor was the daughter of the late D. P. Corwin and her girlhood days were spent on Corwin Hill and her early married life in Wellsville and Allen-town.

Some men who aim to please should take a few days off for target practice.

Let us help you with this, the problem of meeting the book needs of the children of Andover.

EDITH M. THORNE, Librarian Leader of Andover Home Bureau.
