THE HI HERALD

your memories of this district school where you spent your early school days?

I always looked forward to Arbor Day. Each year on this holiday we hiked over the hills and thru the woods and really celebrated the day in a big way. To end the day right we planted one or two trees in the school lawn, however the trees always found their fate when the mowing machine would mow the trees down with the grass.

What was your first impression of Andover High School?

I didn't think I would like it at first because I knew very few of the students up here and it was really quite a change to me. As soon as I made new friends and got acquainted with the students, I readily changed my mind.

When you entered high school, what type of a course did you take up?

An academic course, because that took in the languages and sciences which I needed to take up nursing, which I picked as my vocation.

Out of these subjects which of them did you like best?

I think I like history the best. I like most all of my subjects as a rule but algebra seemed to be rather difficult for me. I guess I was never meant to be a mathematician.

All in all, you like school, don't you?

Well, I can't exactly say I hate it. Dorothy Sweet, one of Andover High School's well liked and studious Seniors, was born Dec. 16, 1921, on a farm located on the Elm Valley-Wellsville road. Although she is quite studious she is unable to participate in many of the extra curricular activities due to the fact that she has to go on the school bus. However, she has many activities at home to make up for this. She has been collecting China dogs of all sizes, shapes and colors. She is also very fond of sewing and makes many things on the sewing machine for her little cousin. We all wish you the best of luck in the future, Dorothy.

Valentine Story

Since next Tuesday, Feb. 14 is St. Valentine's Day, Inez Kemp has handed in a Valentine story for the Hi Herald. This story is a revision of a recent story Inez heard on the radio.

In a small village there once lived an old lovable lady known by the familiar name of "Grandma" to the people of the town. Grandma ran a small doughnut shop which everyone praised very highly.

John, the man who owned the land that Grandma's shop was on came to Grandma one day and said that she would have to go out of business. Such a statement almost killed Grandma for she loved the old shop and it was all she had. She looked at John and said: "John, I've been here in business for almost fifty years."

At this moment two small boys who were very fond of Grandma's doughnuts stood outside the door. They too, were deeply concerned over losing such good doughnuts. At once they began figuring upon an idea to help poor old Grandma.

John told Grandma that a doughnut shop on his land decreased his special standing. However, John was not all cruel. He said to Grandma "If you can prove to me that the people in town like you by February 14, I will let you stay here."

"He will be back on Valentine's Day," said one of the small boys who were standing outside the shop. So the boys went around the town and told all the people to send Grandma a Valentine on Valentine's Day. They told everyone the story and how Grandma would lose her shop if she didn't prove to John that the people in town liked her.

February 14 came and Grandma had lost hope of keeping her shop. When John came he said, "Well, have you got the evidence?" Grandma looked up with tears in her eyes and told John that she would leave.

But wait! The mailman was coming down the street with a huge load of letters and he headed straight for the shop.

"Grandma, look at all the Valentines you have from the people here in the village. I'm darn glad to get rid of all this luggage."

John's eyes opened wide. Here was more than proof that the people liked Grandma. Grandma kept her little shop, but she never figured out what had happened.

Humor

Jim (talking about the old home town): "I understand they have a curfew law out there now?"

Jack: "Now; they did have one, but gave it up."

Jim: "What was the matter?"

Jack: "The bell rang at nine o'clock and almost everyone complained about being awakened."

Jane: "Did you have influenza as bad as I did? I had to stay away from school three weeks."

Jean: "I had it much worse than that—I had it during the holidays."

"What's happened, George?" the wife inquired as her husband got out of the car to investigate.

"Puncture," he replied briefly. "You should have been more careful," she said. "The sign said 'Fork Ahead.'"

"Did you notice how the Daily Humdrum slammed my latest paper?" "Oh, don't mind that. The critic on the paper is notoriously like a parrot, he only repeats what everybody else is saying."

Sam: "My little sister has the measles."

Jim: "Oh! So has mine."

Sam: "Well, I'll bet my little sister has more measles than yours has."
