Waftings From WANDERING WILLIE

"PETE" Howland is still giving demonstrators a real chance to demonstrate their snowplows, altho we haven't heard of having to shovel any more of them out this week.

"Pete" will remember this winter for some years as he has had more trouble with drifts the past three weeks than in the last few years all put together. Every time the road gang hear the wind rising and see about 17 snowflakes circling around they know doggone well that the little white fellows will head out in the country and fill a spot that they had just finished digging out. Oh well, as "Clay" Burger said this morning "Spring is just around the corner—I hope."

THERE are about a half a dozen young high school fellows who, we predict, are riding for a fall. They have been having lots of fun recently, good ordinary clean fun, but they can't get a kick out of that kind of fun any more so are making it mighty inconvenient for the townspeople with their pranks. The village officials are frowning more and more as the antics continue so our advice to you fellows is to keep up the good work and get a real thrill before the justice of the peace some of these days.

"BOY meets girl" should be the caption of a little episode taking place this week when a certain young gentleman of the village made a blind date with his "maw" over the phone. The mama rather got the idea that her offspring was all mixed up and trying to flirt with her after a couple minutes of conversation, so went right to town over the phone for a 15-minute session before she said a sweet goodbye and left the younger generation wondering who the swell gal was. We won't tell.

WE want to take our hat off to Harry Williams for the fine job he done with the ladies and end-men in the minstrel. He must have had the patience of Job to make the gals go thru their drills the way they did. And to the gals goes a lot of credit for perfect timing and spacing thru the difficult moves and steps in many of the acts.

Some of the participants were rather put out at different times during the rehearsals thinking that "Williams is too doggone cross to night," but after witnessing the final performances, one can readily see that anyone had to be a little strict to handle the job he had.

AND while we're on the subject of the minstrel, many changes have come about as the result of it, not the least of which is the manufacture by "Mike" Folsing of a harness or hobble to prevent "Doc" Scott's wiener-dog from kicking people going by as was stated from the stage.
