Some People Do Not Believe in Signs

On Sunday, May 21, Theodore Whittleton of Niagara Falls, N. Y., stopped at the largest private reforestation project in Allegany county on Route 17, one mile east of Andover owned by R. E. Shaff and containing 10,000 trees - some of them set seven years ago. This property is plainly marked with posters reading "No Trespassing. Any person trespassing upon these premises will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law."

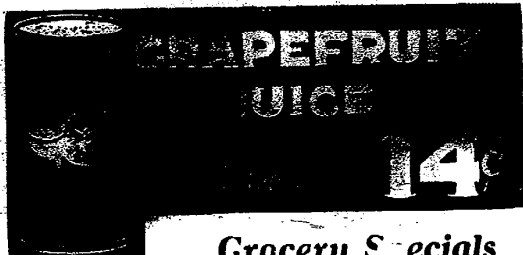

Evidently Whittleton did not believe in signs. Taking his trusty spade from the rear of his car he proceeded to remove several trees, three to be exact, and load them in his car to take to his residence in Niagara Falls.

Victor Hoagland, owner of a farm adjoining the Shaff project, came along and witnessed the removal of the trees and incidentally jotted down the number of the car license. Monday, May 22nd a warrant was issued by Justice of the Peace W. S. Calhoun of Andover and turned over to the sheriff's department. Imagine the surprise of Mr. Whittleton to have the sheriff of Allegany county place him under arrest and to find out that the maximum fine for removing three evergreen trees cost $50.00, the same being the price he paid.

Moral: Buy your trees from a nursery. They are cheaper.
