AROUND OUR HOUSE

TRICKS WITH MEAT PATTIES

Ground meat patties are excellent for warm weather meals because they are quickly prepared and do not cost much when made from less tender cuts of meat, says the New York State College of Home Economics.

Many persons prefer beef, but patties of lamb, pork, or veal are also favored. A combination of veal and pork is also good.

For seasoning meat patties, chopped parsley and a bit of onion are favorites; or a dash of sage and thyme with salt and pepper. For a dressed-up patty, a narrow strip of bacon may be fastened around the edge with a toothpick, and the patty may be then placed on a thin ring of Bermuda onion, if desired. Another way is to put them on broiled pineapple slices and top them with sauteed mushrooms.

Lean meat, like round steak, or beef chuck, or veal, is usually better with extra fat added. Both suet and bacon fat are especially good ground up in meat patties. Some add cream, sweet or freshly soured, to the chopped meat; use two or three tablespoons of cream to each pound of meat. Undiluted evaporated milk may be used in place of cream.

Most persons prefer patties made with some starchy food or binder, which helps to hold the mixture together and makes the patty lighter. Fine, dry bread crumbs moistened with milk, or tomato juice may be used; or mashed potatoes, boiled rice, or a thick white sauce or gravy.

The Spinster Who Turned Down the Marriage Proposals of a Thousand Men

The most wonderful woman I have ever known has had a thousand men propose to her. She has turned down offers from millionaires and from fishermen and farmers and penniless men on the Bowery. A prince from one of Europe's most prominent royal families followed her for months and begged her to marry him. And now, although she has already reached her threescore years and ten, she is still getting so many proposals by mail that her secretary doesn't even bother to show them to her.

Her name is Evangeline Booth, and she is the head of the grandest army that ever attacked an enemy—the Salvation Army—an army with 30,000 officers, feeding the hungry in 86 far-flung countries and spreading love in 80 different languages.

I got something of a shock when I met Evangeline Booth. I knew she was old enough to be a grandmother, yet her dark red hair was just beginning to show a few streaks of gray. And she was sparkling with vivacity and blazing with enthusiasm.

Every summer when she is in America, she goes to Lake George and does fancy diving—jack-knives and turtle-backs and swan-dives; and when she was 63, she swam clear across Lake George in four hours.

It takes her an hour to motor from her house to the office, and she dictates all that time in her automobile.

Evangeline Booth says that one of the most thrilling experiences of her life occurred during the gold rush of the Yukon. You may recall that just before the turn of the century, gold was discovered in Alaska, and the news set the nation seething with excitement. Hordes of men began hurrying to the far North, and Evangeline Booth knew that the Salvation Army would be needed there; so with a couple of trained nurses and three or four assistants, she headed for the Yukon. When she landed in Skagway, eggs were worth $25 each and butter $300 a pound. Some men were hungry and all of them carried guns. And everywhere she heard men talking about "Soapy" Smith, the killer of the Klondike, the Dillinger of the Yukon. "Soapy" Smith and his gang laid in wait for miners returning from the gold fields and shot them down without warning and robbed them of their gold dust. The United States government sent an armed posse to kill him, but Soapy Smith shot all of them and escaped. Skagway was a tough place. Five men were killed there the day Evangeline Booth arrived.

That night, she held a meeting on the banks of the Yukon River and preached to 25,000 lonely men and got all of them singing songs they had heard their mothers sing in the long ago—Jesus, Lover of My Soul, Nearer My God to Thee, and Home Sweet Home.

The Arctic night was chilly and raw and cold, so while she was singing, one man brought a blanket and threw it around her.

This vast crowd of men sang until 1 o'clock in the morning; and then Evangeline Booth and her helpers went out in the forest to sleep on the ground under the pine trees. They had started a fire and were making a little cocoa when they saw five men approaching them with guns. When they got within speaking distance, the head man took off his hat and said: "I'm Soapy Smith; and I've come to tell you how much I enjoyed your singing." And he added, "I was the man that sent you the blanket while you were singing. You can keep it, if you want to."—A blanket doesn't sound like much of a gift now; but it was a royal present up there where men were dying from chills and the damp.

She asked him if she would be in any danger there in Skagway. "No. Not while I'm here," he said. "I'll protect you."

She talked with him in the white night of the midnight Sun for three hours. She said, "I'm giving life and you're taking it. That's not right. You can't win. They'll kill you sooner or later." She talked to him of his childhood and his mother; and he told her that he used to attend Salvation Army meetings with his grandmother and sing and clap his hands. And he confessed that when his grandmother lay dying, she asked him to sing a song they had learned together at the Salvation Army meetings:

My heart is now whiter than snow,
For Jesus abides with me here.
My sins which are many I know
Are pardoned. My title is clear.

Miss Booth asked him to kneel with her; and the Salvation Army girl and "Soapy" Smith, the most notorious bandit that ever terrorized the North, got down on their knees together and prayed and wept together under the northern pines.

With tears rolling down his cheeks, "Soapy" promised her that he would stop killing people and would give himself up, and Miss Booth promised that she would use all her influence with the government to get him a light sentence.

At four o'clock in the morning he left her.

At 9 o'clock, he sent one of his men to her with a present of freshly baked bread and jam tartlets—and a pound of butter—delicacies that were priceless up there. He had stuck people up with a gun and stolen the flour and the butter, and one of the bad women of Skagway

Dated June 15, 1939.
Board of Education of Union Free School District No. 1, Town of Andover, New York.
W. J. ALDERSON, Clerk

had requested the privilege of baking the bread and jam tartlets for the good woman who had come to Alaska to preach love and purity and forgiveness.

Two days later, somebody shot "Soapy" Smith and Skagway erected a monument to the honor of the man who killed him.

Evangeline Booth is one of the happiest persons I have ever met. Happy because she is living for others. She told me that the deepest passion of her life is a desire to make every person she meets—even every waitress and pullman porter—a little better because she passed that way.—(Copyright 1937)
