POET'S CORNER

VERBS

A verb's the worst thing in the world
For me to learn aright;
I study till I have it all
I think, all fast and tight.

But when the teacher calls on me
And I stand up to recite,
I can't make any sense of it,
And never get it right.

You try to give the parts of verbs
And say see, saw, and seen,
But when you give the parts of be,
You can't say be, law, been.

If Johnny gives the parts of go,
And says go, went, and gone,
It doesn't help a bit with grow;
You can't say grow, went, grown.

The parts of take you're very sure
Are take and took and taken,
Yet take seems very wrong somehow
As take and book and bacon.

Now do, did, done sounds very well
And so do eat, ate, eaten;
But moo, mid, man is very queer
And so is cheat, chate, cheaten.

It's worse than partial payments,
You never get it right,
And then the fellows laugh at you
When it's your turn to recite.

If ever I make a grammar,
There shall be some sense to it
And if bite and bit are proper,
So shall these be: fight and fit.

—K.H.

FALL
Fall is coming,
Leaves are falling,
The wind is rather cool;
The south is summoning
All the birds and to the bell's tolling.

We are going back to school.

Americans consume more than two hundred million pounds of sugar each year in ice cream, ices and sherbets.

A well-planned farm layout is one way to save land and labor. Helpful suggestions and diagrams are given in Cornell bulletin E-55, and single copies may be had free from the New York State College of Agriculture at Ithaca, N. Y.

Both man and livestock appreciate the advantages of running water in farm buildings, especially on cold winter days. Many dairymen have found that water buckets for cows will increase milk production enough to pay for the water system in one year.
