Standardization

STANDARDIZATION is a term which one might say has come into its own in the last decade or so, for it has become characteristic of modern times. And yet, in spite of what it signifies in certain instances—the lifting up of manufactured goods to a specified standard, or the establishment of minimum wage laws, thereby protecting the wage-earner—standardization, as such, has many opponents.

We find William Lyon Phelps saying, "Standardization is the enemy of progress," and Calvin Coolidge wrote: "Progress depends very largely on the encouragement of variety. The privilege of the individual to develop his own thoughts and shape his own character, that makes progress possible." These men saw the dangers of standardization. For no matter how high a human standard may be, limitation is always present because that standard is below perfection. For example, one might have a highly developed piece of apparatus, but if it were taken as an ideal standard, progress would be made beyond it. This would mean the stifling of initiative, resourcefulness, and the limitation of progress.

How to deal with the problem of standardization—to keep that which is good, yet not to be limited by it—is a question which needs to be faced and answered. Jesus gave the one perfect standard for all time when he said (Matthew 5:48): "Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect." No standard is high enough, then, unless it is perfection itself. Mary Baker Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, writes in her textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" (p. 383): "Perfection unites reality." This is not hard to grasp when we accept the spiritual record of creation set forth in the first chapter of Genesis: "God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him. . . . And God saw every thing that he had made, and behold, it was very good."

Even glimpsing the infinitude of God enables thought to grasp in some degree the limitlessness of the intelligence, the beauty, the good which are man's to use and enjoy.

The joy and freedom which come from knowing these spiritual facts are shown in two passages from Mrs. Eddy's writings. One from "Science and Health" (p. 253): "God expresses in man the infinite idea forever developing itself, broadening and rising higher and higher from a boundless basis." The other, from her "Miscellaneous Writings" (pp. 82, 83), is as follows: "Immortal Mind is God, immortal good; in whom the Scripture saith 'we live, and move, and have our being.' This Mind, then, is not subject to growth, change, diminution, but is the divine intelligence or Principle, of all real being; holding man forever in the rhythmic round of unfolding bliss, as a living witness to and perpetual idea of inexhaustible good."

As we realize that our real selfhood is the expression of God, good, we see that there is no limit to the good we may express. And we are in no danger of becoming boastful or vain, for we are conscious that God is the source of all good; that to Him belongs the glory.

We may well ask ourselves about everything in our experience, "What is my standard for this? Rejecting everything that is limited, distorted, and imperfect, and accepting only what is perfect, shall we not be raising up to it by improving our thoughts until they conform to perfection. A high ideal! Yes, but the patience, the love, and the perseverance one must exercise to attain it bless one along the entire way.

God being the Principle of all right desires, motives, and attainment, perfection is the universal standard. No limitation of good belongs to the real selfhood of anyone. And here we see that it is not a matter of great concern whether our brother is measuring up to some human standard we may have outlined. In this regard, the all-important question is, Are our thoughts of our brother measuring up to the standard of perfection?

One can readily see the freedom which results from accepting as one's own the standard of perfection. In it there is no restriction of good. One's love, one's service, one's consciousness of good cannot be humanly standardized, when it is understood that the resources of good are infinite and inexhaustible. Paul, with the standard of perfection before him, wrote in his letter to the Ephesians (Ephesians 1:3-4): "Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who hath blessed us with all spiritual blessings in heavenly places in Christ: according as he hath chosen us in him before the foundation of the world, that we should be holy and without blame before him in love."

LITTLE BITS OF HONOR

Woman Customer (after the tired assistant had pulled down blanket after blanket until there was only one left on the shelf): "I don't really want to buy a blanket today. I was only looking for a friend."

Clerk: "If you think he's in the other one, madam, I'll gladly take it down for you."

The fond mother wrote to her son who was on military service: "I hope that you have now learned to get up punctually every morning so that you do not keep the whole battalion waiting for breakfast."

He: "But, dearest, if we buy this car, how are we to pay for it?"
She: "Let's not confuse the issue by considering two problems at once."

"Whatever's come over your husband lately, Mrs. Raggles?" asked Mrs. Raggleson of her neighbor, "Es done nothin' but sit an' brood on the doorstep with 'is chin in 'is 'ands."
"E ain't broodin' at all," replied the other, "E practicing for the local checker tournament."

Doc: "There's no need to worry about your wife. You'll have a different woman when she gets back from the hospital."
Anxious Hubby: "And what if she finds out?"

Bobby: "Pa, what is a parking place?"
Pa: "An unfiled opening in an unending line of automobile near an unapproachable fire plug."

Friendly Susie: "Had you heard that Jane is engaged to an X-ray specialist?"
Jealous Fan: "Well, she's lucky. Nobody else could see anything in her."

WATCH YOUR P's AND Q's

In type, letters are cast in reverse. The "p" looks like a "q." Unsifted type printers often got the two letters mixed. This was the origin of the admonition "Watch your P's and Q's."

Today most any printer knows his "p" and "q," but all printers don't know how to produce good up-to-date printing. Only alert craftsmen working with speed, new type faces and modern printing equipment can produce "correct-model" printing.

THE HAWK HAS MANY USES

Obtaining better results from your land, and increasing the yield of your crops, is the aim of every farmer. One of the best ways to do this is to use the services of a professional land surveyor. The professional land surveyor will give you a complete survey of your land, showing the boundaries, the location of buildings, and the location of any other structures on the land. This information is essential for the proper management of your land.

How One Woman Lost 20 POUNDS OF FAT

Lost Her Double Chin
Lost Her Stomach
Gained a Beautiful Figure
and the Increase in Her Energy and Vitality

Thousands of women are suffering from the same trouble. They are overweight, they have a double chin, and they feel tired and listless. The reason for this is that they are not getting enough exercise and they are not eating the right kind of food. The solution is simple. You must exercise regularly and you must eat a diet that is low in calories and high in nutrients. This is the only way to lose weight and to feel better.
