Fifteen members have been selected from a trial staff of more than 135 to be on the Hi Herald staff. Effort was made to give preference to upper classmen for the immediate staff as the lower classmen can be given the training in future years. For the regular news writing, editorials and special features, the officers of the Hi Herald and their adviser, Miss Barrett, selected the following

Hi Herald Sub-Team Selected

There is a broken window, a barn that isn't there any more, a hay stack and a straw stack that are now just black spots. I presume despite this fact that you are laughing and saying: "Boy, we sure had a swell time this Hallowe'en." This might be true, but don't you think it was going a bit too far to destroy propperty just for fun?

I don't mean to incinuate that you shouldn't celebrate Hallowe'en. I merely want to say that there is a limit to everything. No one minds too much having their dose held the more and burnes things "just for fun."

A Kindergarten

"More fun to visit" they told me. So I visited the A. C. S. kindergar-ten one afternoon, just as the kin-dergartens were folding rugs after their rest period. Looking around I saw toys and doll furniture neatly put away in the corners and bright posters on the wall. Then I watched while chairs scraped along the floor, as Miss Rectenwald asked the volunesters to bring their some youngsters to bring their own seats over to the piano. Arranging then in rows, they sat down and musi lass began.

They started off singing single notes, but soon they were singing 'Two Little Blackbirds,' "Jack o' antern," and "Jack and Jill" with different members of the class act ing the words out.

Then Miss Rectenwald called two or three youngsters up to sing alone.

She explained that in this manner was voice testing them, a fer ach day.

Recitations came next, and the class said "Humpty Dumpty," "Little Jack Horner," and "Little Boy Blue" for me, using motions to illustrate the pieces.

At this point each boy and girl took his chair back to its place at the low tables, and prepared to play a few games.

ANDOVER LOSES

Andover Central School's football team journeyed to Arkport last Friday for the last game of the year and was beaten by a hard fighting Arkport team 20 to 0. The game was played on a very muddy and slippery field with all of the opponents' points being scored on end runs. The Arkport team had good blocking on these runs, the main cause for their victory. The line-up follows:

| Andover Central School's football team journey for this week are:
| 1—The Flighting Irish whip the Navy.
| 2—North Carolina State beats Wake Forest.
| 3—Georgetown rolls on to beat Maryland.
| 4—Cornell chalks up another win course for their victory. The line-up follows:
