What would you say to this? It always seems, from many view points, that whenever any one class endeavors to hold a party the result is anything but favorable. The committees are too small to accomplish anything.

Since this is true, why wouldn't there be more success in holding a united party in which a committee made up of representatives from each class in high school could collaborate on ideas and fun-making for a party in which all classes could join? Surely our gym is large enough for accommodations. If this should appeal to the students of A. C. S., why not work on it so that it becomes a reality?

Answer.—It isn't the wheat that explodes, but the dust accumulated from it. Very fine particles called dust when derived from any combustible material, are likely to burn with explcsive violence when ignited. A substance in the form of dust exposes an enormous surface to contact with the air, hence the particles may burn with extreme randiday and this constitutes the so. rapidity and this constitutes the so-called explosion.
