The Dramatic Club Situation

I have been "tagged" by the Editor-in-chief to write an editorial on the question of having a dramatic club in our school. I should like to give the history of the rise and fall of this organization.

Strange as it may seem, the Dramatic Club came to a close because of over-popularity. This club was started two or three years ago and within a short time its membership numbered about 40 pupils. Meetings had to be held in the auditorium, and because of the conflict of use, the meetings had to be held in the evening. Because of the large number, participation by the whole group was impossible. It was recognized that some means of limiting membership should be set up, but just how was not so easy to determine.

Last year Miss Larkin had planned to start the club again, but considered it advisable to wait until other clubs were under way with the thought that the membership would thus be lessened. The "other clubs" did not get under way except in few instances and so the dramatic club remained dormant.

There is no reason why we cannot have a dramatic club this year. Any club organization should be made up of members who are genuinely interested in the activity which the club represents. This was not entirely true in the original Dramatic Club, and the success of a new Dramatic Club will depend on its membership being safeguarded against merely "good time" members.

"Book Booth" In County Fair Style

An eye-filling piece of architecture, namely, a book booth done in "county fair" style, with effects obtained by the use of stripes of blue and white crepe paper and gaily colored balloons, has been on display in the library this week as part of the Book Week program.

Among the new books which are to be found on the table under the booth's awning, or whose colorful jackets are attractively placed on

Library Tea Given Tuesday Afternoon

Tea and cookies were served Tuesday afternoon in the beautifully decorated library of the Andover Central School to the school board members, the town library board members, and the faculty of A. C. S. The tea was served from 3:30 to 4:30 o'clock.

Patricia Lynch, vice president of the Library Council, had charge of the tea. This included making out invitations and presiding at the table, with assistance from other council members. The council girls took full charge of the tea, including the baking of cookies, with suggestions from Miss Anderson and Miss Mahl, of course.

This tea was part of the book week program planned by the Library Council members and Miss Anderson.

Our Homemakers

Homemaking girls are making booklets on food constituents, in climaxing their study of vitamins.

The Home Ec. 6 Class is studying a unit on "Health in the Home and Community" including "sewage and garbage disposals."

Freshmen home economics girls are learning how to shampoo and shellac a rug. They are also practicing the correct methods of ironing linens and washing woolen sweaters.

Some homemaking and non-homemaking girls made cookies and cakes Monday afternoon for the Book Week tea held Tuesday.

Some very clever bulletin boards, well worthy of notice, may be found in the home economics department.

the bulletin boards are such best sellers as "Kablona" by Gontrin de Poncins; "I Married Adventure" by Osa Johnson; "Random Harvest" by James Hilton; "The Vanishing Virginian" by Rebecca Y. Williams and "There Shall Be No Night" the play by Robert E. Sherwood.

The awning frame for this display was made by the shop department and the structure was erected and decorated by Miss Anderson, with the help of the Library Council.

Bones Around the Boulevard

Elements are uncontrollable, in the opinion of the Chemistry Class. An experiment was tried twice last week, with varying results. The first time just a bright flame, but, on the second time, a most violent explosion shook the room literally. No one fainted, however.

Why not crown a Sade and L'il Abner the night of the Student Council dance? Just a suggestion. "Chuck" Holt studies his play book even in English. Miss Anderson didn't approve, however.

When one comes to Social Hour and then doesn't come in just because she has her slacks on things are in bad shape. Our sympathies are with her.

The workroom has been seeing real service, with all the Book Week preparations going on. Many of the new books look interesting.

Junior play rehearsal is going ahead very well. The first act is on its way.

The settee in the library doesn't hold ten people at once, girls! Sit lightly, if possible.

We're afraid that the picket fence you made isn't as substantial as it might be Jean, yet it seems to serve the purpose.

Boots are the fad, it seems. Ten gallon hats have not yet made their appearance. They're cute, why not?

Pupils Attend Navy Band Concert

High School Members Hear Famous Band at Coudersport

Twenty-five members of the Andover Central School band traveled to Coudersport, Pa., Tuesday afternoon to attend the U. S. Navy Band concert held there in the Consistory Auditorium. They were accompanied by Miss Marian Hanneman, music director, and were taken in one of the school busses.

The Navy Band, composed of 45 members in full Naval uniform, played a two-hour program of varied music designed to delight the audience, composed principally of school children. Another concert was given in the Coudersport Auditorium Tuesday evening. A special admission of 35 cents was made for school children for the afternoon concert.

The enthusiastic comments and reactions of the Andover musicians indicated that the trip was both entertaining and instructive.

PURPLE PANTHERS WIN FOOTBALL CHAMPIONSHIP

The tough football team of Andover Central School clinched the Section I title of Steuben county last Friday night. The Purple Panthers beat Addison by a 7-0 score.

The lone touchdown was scored by "Bill" Lehman after a run of 20 yards. The point after touchdown was made by a pass from Dolan to Ruger.

The first half was mostly a kicking duel between Gladstone of Addison and Dolan for the locals. The honors were just about even in this department.

Rain fell almost continually during the last half and the ball was very hard to handle with very few large gains occurring.

However, in the last quarter Andover pushed Addison back to their own 12-yard line. At this point Addison was forced to kick. Gladstone dropped back and received the ball but it was blocked by Stan Ruger. "Bill" Lehman picked up the loose ball and streaked the remaining 20 yards for a touchdown.

This victory was the third for the locals against no defeats. Andover finished the season without being scored upon. The only mar on a perfect record was the scoreless tie with Arkport.

This is the first championship gained by the Purple and White of Andover in a long time and all the boys hope it carries through the basketball season.

Library Council Members Celebrate

Thirteen members of the Library Council enjoyed a social evening from 7 to 10 o'clock in the library, last Wednesday evening, Oct. 28.

Cider, doughnuts, marshmallows and candy were served as refreshment. Various forms of entertainment were enjoyed. Among them were the following: A ghost story told by Catherine Perry, imitations of various types of things by Patricia Lynch, a walk in the dark from the library to the homemaking room by Frances Slocum and a lecture on flies by Miss Anderson. Come to the Student Council Dance

Tomorrow night, you the students of A. C. S., will attend your first dance.

We want to see everyone at this first dance of the year. The price is not high, only 55 cents for high school students and 77 cents for outsiders.

You all will want to hear the new band organized this year by Yale Jacobs.

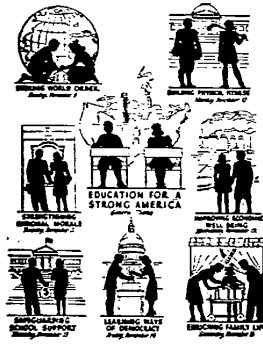

We will be expecting all of you tomorrow night, Nov. 7th at 8:30 p. m., in the high school gymnasium. ACS

Junior Play Sidelights

Most directors complain because the actors and actresses act too stiff, but Miss Anderson seems to

National Education Week Next Week

Twenty First Observance
AMERICAN EDUCATION WEEK
NOVEMBER 9-15, 1941

American Education Week will be observed throughout the nation next week with a general invitation to parents and citizens to visit their schools and see the educational process at work. The Andover Central School joins in this observance and extends an invitation to all who are interested to make a visit to the school some time during the week.

No special program will be put on—just the ordinary routine of classes, but parents and others are welcome at any time. The teachers will be glad to explain the work or the procedures to all visitors.

Many changes in the aims and methods of education have taken place during the past few years. The three R's are still taught and are very important, but there have been added responsibilities. Some of the most important of these are listed on the cut above:

- Build strong bodies.
- Develop special talents.
- Learn to work and play together.
- Prepare for jobs.
- Grow in character.
- Become good citizens.

Showcase Display For Book Week

A. C. S. students, upon entering the school Monday morning were greeted by a beautiful and appropriate display for book week in the show case by the office. Lights from all directions were focused upon a football which was surrounded by colorful book jackets. The lights reflected the soft colors of those attractive "jackets."

These book jackets suggested many an interesting book which could be found on subjects concerning hobbies, sports, future vocational training and enjoyment.

It was noticed that many students stopped to admire the display, proving that much approbation is due the Library Council girls and Miss Anderson, who conceived this display. JR
